His Nails will be sold, at wholesale, on more advantageous terms than they can be procured from abroad and being cut under the strong heat of a coal fire, will be found much less brittle that what are made in the prisons, or the manufactories of places, where fuel is used sparingly. Gentlemen at a distance, who want a quantity, may find it advisable to send their orders beforehand, as the general demand will probably often exceed the stock made up. Francis M'SHANE.

A man of the name of Joseph YOTER who lived a few miles this side of Lewistown, made a violent attack, a few evenings since, upon his Wife, with an axe, with which he cut her on both sides of the neck, until her wind pipe could be seen, and fractured her scull so as to let out a part of her brains. The first information of this diabolical act communicated, by YOTER himself, to several of his neighbors, who at his request, have lodged him in the Lewistown Jail. This poor unfortunate woman, we understand, is still living but very little hopes are entertained of her final recovery. (Hunt. Gazette)

Over! Over! Over! It is for the convenience of my customers as well as to enable me to discharge my Rent which is now due, that I call upon you to settle your accounts up to this date, while I am in your road to and from Wilkesbarre. You that have done your years of ferrying will wait for no further compliments, but call immediately and settle up your accounts, and if you cannot discharge the accounts we can settle the Books. E. WILSON, Ferryman

Fire! We learn with regret, that last week the house of Archibald MURRY, of Sugar Loaf, on the Berwick Turnpike, was consumed by fire, with the furniture and many valuable papers.

A short time ago the Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill, and about 30,000 feet of boards, belonging to Zenas BARNUM, of Lackawanna, were consumed by fire. The loss is estimated at about 3000 dollars. This loss of an industrious man, stripping him of the labours of his life, must be severely felt. What renders the situation of Mr. BARNUM, more peculiarly distressing, is that it is but a year or two since his house, was consumed. In other places, when a worthy citizen suffers severely by an accident of this kind, it is customary for the people to unite, and to make up a considerable portion of his loss. Are the people of Luzerne less humane and generous than their neighbors? It is earnestly recommended that a subscription should be circulated in each township, and be divided between Mr. BARNUM and Mr. MURRAY in proportion to their losses.

John J. WARD and Adney S. ATKINS, Tailors, inform their friends and the Publick in general, that they have taken a shop on the north side of the Public Square, three doors west of Jonathan HANCOCK'S Tavern where work will be done in a neat and fashionable manner, and at a very short notice. N. B. One or two Journeymen tailors, can have constant employment by applying at above.

Leonard LOTT, died at Braintrim on the 9th Jan., 68 years old.

Jesse CRISMAN to Miss Polly HARTZELL at Hanover (no date)

13 March 1812

Our State Legislature has been talking about many things, and doing but few. There are now before the House, several matters in which Luzerne is interested:

1. An act to improve the breed of sheep in Luzerne
2. An ace regulating the mode of selling unseated land for taxes
3. An act to incorporate a Stone Coal Company in the County of Luzerne
4. A bill is also before the House for organizing the County Districts of Ontario and Susquehanna

Communication - Manual TURNER, of Huntington, Luzerne Co., together with the well known virtues of Dr. CRARY'S Pills, is a convincing proof that the public will be greatly benefited by them. He was for a number of years afflicted with pain in the breast, sickness at stomach, want of digestion and distressing cough. Many Physicians supposed him to be affected with a consumption of the lungs. In the fall of 1810, being in a very weak condition, by the solicitations of friends, he was induced to take a portion of CRAY'S Pills.

They discharged during their operation; a great number of small worms; he was much better, but in March 1811, feeling his old disorder returning, he took a double potion. In their operation, a worm was discharged, which measured seven feet in length, and about half an inch diameter; at the same time about 60 smaller ones, a species of the same. Since that time he had enjoyed good health.

The above statement as it respects myself, is true. Manuel TURBER

Died in this town last week, Mrs. Sarah SMITH and her son, John REED. Mrs. SMITH was lying at the point of death when her son, a lad of about 18 years, was brought in from a journey, very sick. The meeting exceedingly affecting. The son had been delirious from his fever. When supported to the bed-side where his mother lay, a beam of reason for a moment relumined his mind. He laid his hand on her cheek. "My dear Mother" said he faintly and he was led away, and his mother soon expired. He survived but a few hours. The Launch!! We are authorized to state that on April 10th at 2 o'clock P. M. will be launched form the Ship Yard at this Port, the vessel ___ on the Stocks. The Stockholders are requested to meet at the house of John P. ARNDT at 10 o'clock of the said day, on important business and those who are in arrears are desired to come prepared to pay the balance due their stock.

Afflicting — On Sunday last while the Susquehanna was at its height, Philip, son of John P. ARNDT, a fine little boy about 8 years old, was seen in a large boat fastened to the shore. When evening came, Philip was first remarked to be absent. A search was immediately made for him but in vain. A dreary night was passed by his friends. Hope still lingered on the ___ders of despair. Morning came and there was no tidings of their son. There is no doubt but he had fallen from the boat ad was lost to them forever.

Abel P. DODGE, came from Pomfret, Conn, was going to his friends in Tunkhannock, came to this place last week. He mentioned the name of Dr. JACKSON, Tunkhannock. He had lost one leg ____ing amputated near his body. He seemed delirious, but his derangement it is supposed arose from his illness. On Saturday morning he died and on Sunday decently interred. His friends may call for his property at this office.

New Judicial District — The bill erecting the counties of Wayne, Susquehanna, Tioga and Bradford, into a Judicial District, has passed into a law.

ARNDT. Wilkes-Barre. Those Editors circulating their papers below this place on the river, are requested to give the above one or more insertions.

____well IVES, of Lawsville, PA to Miss ___ziah THRALL, married at Kent, Conn. (no date)

The Launch on Friday last. The boat was built on the bank of the river, 100 feet from the water and 15 feet perpendicular height above it, so that she had a considerable distance to move. The boat measures between 50 and 60 tons. Her colors were flying from her stern, and near thirty persons were on board. The after block was knocked away — every eye was fixed — all was anxiety — but she did not move. The news of the Embargo had just come in town, and she seemed aware that there was no business for her on the ocean, and she might as well lie in dry dock. The men on board all gathered near her bow and then run in a body to the stern. She started — moving for half a minute slowly — the velocity increased, and she slid most gracefully into her destined element, amid the shouts of thousands. As she met the water, Capt. CHAPMAN, christened her in the usual style, "The Luzerne, of Wilkes-Barre. Great credit is due to Mr. MACK, the ship right who built her and whose superintendence she was launched, and to Mr. ARNDT the principal proprietor, who had been chiefly active in her building. We hope her voyage down the crooked and rocky Susquehanna may be safe, tho our hopes are not without some fears for her safety, as she draws without ballast four feet water.

The Gleaner is this week impressed on paper from the New Mill of Messrs. BUCKINGHAM, CHAHOON, TUTTLE and PARKER. The enterprize of these gentlemen is worthy of public patronage. They have erected the first Paper Mill in the County, at a considerable expence, and must depend upon the citizens for the supply of Rags, and for the sale of their paper, to remunerate them for the expence. Our Merchant — our public Officers and our citizens generally, it is hoped will encourage the manufacture of our own county, by supplying themselves with paper from the Kingston Mill, in preference to buying from abroad. But ladies, after all, without your friendly aid, their exertions will be unavailing; unless you will save your Rags, the Mill will be useless. But the patriotic ladies of Luzerne we are confident will never be remiss in any thing that will benefit the county, and particularly in encouraging so valuable an enterprise as the manufacture of paper. Our advice is, that in every house where there exists a disposition to be frugal and to encourage domestic manufactures, the girls should fix a Rag Bat in some handy place, and that every Linen, Cotton or Silk Rag, or shred, should be saved, and sent to Buckingham & Co. or their agents.

Peace, Commerce & Freedom — There were at the meeting, the proceedings of which we publish below, about 200 citizens. John CAREY, an old revolutionary soldier and patriot, presided. Mr. CAREY, has taken but little part in politics for many years, and has long been considered on the Democratic side, but now, where he sees the liberties for which he fought and bled, endangered by the imprudent conduct of the men in authority, he frankly expresses his opinion, that the interest of the nation will be promoted by a change of men and measures. Thousands who have heretofore voted for the men in power, entertain the same opinion with Mr. CAREY, and will step for the friends of Peace, Commerce and Freedom. Dark as is the present hour a ray of hope, breaks thro 'the gloom. Our elections are the strong holds of freedom. Let the people awake their true interests and the republic safe. Notice — The Baptist Church of Christ at Bridgewater, in the County of Susquehanna, and State of Pennsylvania, having received correct information, that there is a report in circulation in the county of Luzerne, and in some parts of the State of New York, that our beloved Elder Davis DIMOCK, has preached doctrine denying the divinity of Christ; and that at one time a large number of his hearers left the house where he was preaching; and that the church had taken up the matter, and entered into labor with him, but got no satisfaction, and some say they heard the Church had excommunicated him; some have heard there was a difficulty in the minds of the Church, and a labor taken with the Elder, but have not heard what he had done. Thomas WOOLLEY to Miss Polly LAUBACH, married in Carytown on Sunday last by Isaac HARTZELL, Esq.

Zachariah HARTSHOUGH died of the prevailing epidemic, at Genoa, Cayuga, NY on the 14th March last and on the 16th, Mrs. HARTSHOUGH, his wife. They were highly respected in their neighborhood; both their funeral sermons were preached by the Rev. Anning OWEN, Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Ulysses, Seneca Co.,, who was immediately seized with the same disorder and died on the 26th. Next morning, Mrs. Mary OWEN, his wife died; and on the ensuing day, they were both interred in one grave; to which they were attended by a numerous company of Methodists, and other professing Christians, as ever was witnessed upon a similar occasion. The marked solemnity, and deep gloom, upon every countenance, showed the respect he was held in, for his usefulness as a preacher; and forcibly exhibited, the great loss, society hath sustained by their death. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Samuel L. RALEIGH, of Cayuga Circuit; from these words. ""Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die, and not live." Both families, were old settlers in Wyoming, a few years ago.

Beware of a Monster. Whereas Lewis PECKHAM, late a Capt. In the 4th Reg. US Infantry, in the service of the US, my lawful wedded husband, without any just cause or reason, has deserted my bed and board - although painful to me, I do denounce him a Liar and a Villain, and a person not to be trusted by either sex. He is a robber of innocence, I have been told - but, alas! Not until too late. He is despised by his comrades, and pitied by his acquaintance. For his unfeeling conduct towards me, I have to caution all young females as well as old women, to beware of this monster, wherever he may go. I married him without knowing him, in consequence of his standing in the army. I took him for a gentleman, but alas! I was deceived. I married him to make him happy; but his vial and treacherous disposition would not admit of it; I therefore think it a duty incumbent on me to caution all female society to have no connection whatever with this monster! He is a destroyer of happiness, but I trust in God he will in some future day receive a full compensation for his villainous conduct towards me. I likewise caution all persons both male an female, form trusting him on my account, as I will pay no debts of his contracting from this date. To give the public a more satisfactory account of this perjured wretch, he was born in Newport, RI; all printers of the public Newspapers throughout the US who have the least spark of feeling for the injuries done to an inoffensive female, who is without Father or friends to fly to for redress or protection, will do but justice in publishing his villainous conduct to the eyes of the world. I am sorry for the reputation of the army, that this monster ever had so high an honor bestowed on him as to wear the uniform of his country, and so villainously disgracing it. Any expense attending this publication form any part of the US, the accounts sent to Wm's Ville, or Buffalo Post-Office, will be honorably paid. Selinda PECKHAM, Wm's Ville, Niagara Co., NY

The citizens of Luzerne are requested to meet at the court house in Wilkesbarre, on Wednesday evening inst. at early candle light, to consider of measures proper to be adopted, to raise a contribution for the relief of the inhabitants of Petersburg, Virginia lately ruined by fire. Five hundred buildings were consumed and thousands reduced in one night from affluence to poverty, calls in a voice loud and feeling for the commiseration and charity of the prosperous. In the distressful year when Wyoming was desolated, we were not forgotten. The Parish of Dresden in Virginia, contributed 180 dollars for the relief of the Wyoming sufferers. Let us return this donation to the suffering inhabitants of a neighboring town.

I cannot make a brush without that necessary but neglected article, Hogs Bristles, no better than a man can make paper without rags, or a hat without fur. Court - George BRACK had been indicted for the murder of Robert DIXON, in August last. At last October term he was tried , and found guilty of murder in the first degree. On motion, the Court granted a new trial. At January term, some error having been made in summoning the Jury, he could not be tried. On Friday last he was arraigned at the bar, and his trial commenced. Messrs. EVANS and MALLERY were counsel (appointed by the Court) for the prisoner. Mr. ROSS on behalf of the prosecution. The trial was managed by the counsel on each side with the ability which is known to distinguish the gentlemen engaged. It is in contemplation to publish a full account of the trial; we there fore abstain from giving a sketch of the evidence, and the charge of the Judge, which we had prepared for the press. The verdict of the Jury was Murder in the second degree. BRACK received his sentence on Monday

Indian Murder - Milledgeville, March 15. Another Murder has been perpetrated, by a party of Creek Indians, upon the body of a wagoner, near Fort Perry. We understand the wagon was rifled of its contents; the horses stolen, and the negro who was in company with the wagoner, either murdered or taken off. This act, it is sated, was entirely unprovoked. These prowling banditti, who infest the nation, roaming after plunder, should be immediately hunted down, and receive exemplary punishment - or, we fear, it will be our unfortunate province to record many a similar act of their barbarity.

5 May 1815

At the commencement of the late war, a company of men from Kingston, in this county, under the command of Capt. THOMAS, volunteered their services to the government. When the fatal disaster befell our army under Gen. HULL, at Detroit, and large reinforcements were wanted the Kingston Volunteers were called upon to perform their tour of duty. They marched with alacrity, and remained under the command of Gen. HARRISON, until the reduction of Upper Canada rendered it prudent to dispense with their future services. Among the Volunteers was a young man, James BIRD, aged about 20 years, born in Exeter, where his parents now reside. He enlisted in the marines while at Erie, and served on board the St. Lawrence, under the immediate command of Commodore PERRY. BIRD wrote a letter dated, 9 Nov. 1814, to his parents telling of his death sentence for deserting from the Marines at Lake Erie, and was confined on board the US brig Niagara. Soon after the receipt of this letter there came another from an officer on board the squadron stating the execution of BIRD on the next day. So perished as brave a soldier as belonged to the army. The other bones of the animal are probably near the spot where the tooth was found, but whether search had been made for them we have not learned. Many years ago a monstrous tooth or horn was found in Tioga branch of the Susquehanna, about 16 miles above Sheshequin, belonging without doubt to the same species of animal, and from the discovery the river bears the name of Chemung, signifying big horn. Lehigh Mill - We witness with great pleasure every improvement that is calculated to increase the business, and consequent prosperity of our county. It is believed that no part of the state improves more rapidly than Luzerne. The Merchant Mill, just completing by John STODDART, Esq., at the falls of Lehigh, in this town, is a noble structure, and is thought by good judges to be surpassed by no mill in the state. The building is of stone, 50 x 70 feet, and four stories high. It will contain four run of stones, three of which are the first rate French Burrs. The Mill is now in operation, and purchases of wheat are making for it. There is no doubt but that the Lehigh may be rendered navigable from the mill, for boats to Philadelphia. What a prospect does it open to that noble city and to our northern country! We hope that Mr. STODDART, whose enterprise is truly a great public, as well as private benefit, will not let the important subject rest; but will pursue it until its importance is known in the city, and then we are sure it will be immediately accomplished.

Ard HOYT, was appointed chairman and Edward COVELL, secretary. The first meeting will be held at the Meeting house in Wilkes-Barre on Monday, 23rd October at 4 o'clock, P. M.

On the 5th October the subscribers fell in company with a man travelling on the road from Wilkes-Barre to Tunkhannock, and from the circumstance of his being on horse-back, without boots or stockings, portmanteau or great coat, and apparently on a journey, it excited suspicion. Upon questioning him, he acknowledged that the horse did not belong to him, but was owned by one Henry VAN NESS, living at a place formerly called Horse Neck (now Fairfield) New-Jersey. He stated that the manner by which he became possessed of the horse was - that he was overtaken by a man on said horse, at or near a place called Black River, about forty miles this side of Horse Neck, and knowing the horse, he challenged him - that the man leaped from the horse and ran into the woods - that he was going to take the horse to the outlet of Cayuga Lake, and calculated to send him back by a man of the name of HOPPER, who was now on the road with a waggon, from the Jerseys to Cayuga, and was to return immediately. We stated to him that we should be under the necessity of having him examined: he replied that he was willing: but in the dusk of the evening, coming to a small copse of wood, not far from Isaac OSTERHOUT'S, he dismounted and fled into the wood. He is rather under the middle size, has a blemish in his right eye (apparently blind or nearly so) wore a pale green coat and pantaloons of cotton, (domestic manufacture.) The horse appears to be 10 or 12 years old, is of a dark brown or black colour, with a white stripe in the forehead, shoes very much worn. The horse likewise has the appearance of having been hard rode. The owner can have him by calling up the subscribers, living in the township of Nicholson, Luzerne County, proving his property, and paying the necessary charges. Nathan BACON and Elemuel CARY. Editors are requested to publish the above, for the benefit of the owner.

Stray. Broke into the enclosure of the subscriber, on the 27th September, two red pied Steers, tow years old. The owner is requested to call, pay charges and take them away. Hezekiah SMITH, Exeter.

Died - In Plymouth on Monday, the 4th inst. , Josiah ROGERS, at the advances age of 95 years. He was a native of Windham, Connecticut; from thence he removed to Wyoming in 1776, and has been an inhabitant of Plymouth ever since. In his habits, the deceased was remarkable for industry and temperance. He used to say that he did not recollect ever to have a drank so as to feel the least excitement from liquor. To this temperance, and to his steady industry in tilling his farm, most probably was he indebted, under Providence for his comfortable old age. His sight entirely left him about six years ago; but he still retained his cheerfulness, and was fond of hearing the news: but his principal pleasure was derived from hearing the Scriptures, and religious books read to him, and in conversing on serious subjects. His confidence in his Saviour's love, and his hopes of a blessed immortality, increased with time, and gathered strength with his years; and he died, not only with resignation, but with joy - expressing his desire to be united with Christ. His funeral was numerously attended, and an appropriate discourse delivered by Elder Griffin LEWIS.

Died - At Pittston, Elijah SILSBE, aged 43 and Eli SILSBE, his son, aged 22.

Died - In this town, an infant daughter of George GORE.

Died - Amid the general sorrow, excited by the numerous deaths in Pittston; feelings of the liveliest grief were awakened by the decease of Miss Sally, dau. of Doct. Nathaniel GIDDINGS. We last week recorded the death of her mother, Sally had been, for the year past with a relation at Bridgewater in Susquehanna County; and being sent for, arrived at home about an hour after her mother had breathed her last. In three days she was taken ill, and in five days more resigned her soul to him who gave it. She was 18 years old, amiable, sensible, and affectionate. After the departure of her mother, she was the chief hope of her father. Great indeed are his trials. His consolation must spring from Him, who is a God of Mercy as well as of Judgment.

We last week remarked that there had been more deaths in Pittston within 10 days than in the preceding six months. We are assured by good authority that in a fortnight there have more grown persons died, than in the six years past. This at once shows the extreme general healthiness of the place, and the no less extraordinary mortality of the present sickness.

Notice. All persons indebted to Eleazer CAREY, who do not make satisfactory arrangements for settling his demands against them, before the first day of the first month of next year, may reasonable expect what justice to him demands. Pittston.

Notice. All persons indebted to the subscribers, are requested to discharge their respective accounts before the first day of January, 1815 and save costs. COLLINGS & BETTLE, Wilkes-Barre.

22 Dec. 1815

Died - This morning, at Hanover, after an illness of four days, Miss Priscilla, daughter of Capt. Andrew LEE. The universal gloom that spread over our village, and the deep sensibility excited in the bosoms of her friends, by the death of this amiable and interesting young lady, speak the high estimation in which she was so deservedly held. 'Death loves a shining mark, a signal blow.' (See 29th Dec.)

The Bridge at Berwick is passable for teams, and we are now receiving toll.

Died - In Pittston, on Saturday, the 16th inst., Charles COOPER.

The Court Martial - Is to commence at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on the 22nd of January, at Mrs. SCOVEL'S. This particular notice is given, because the blundering booby who prints the Democrat, has it, that the Court is to be held at ten o'clock P. M., that is, at night! Whether in a transient moment of honestly, he thought such a work of persecution ought to be carried on in the dark; or whether he really does not know the difference between P. M. and A. M. we pretend not to determine.

Died - In Acton, Ms., James FLETCHER, 52. He was chopping the top of a tree which had been blown over by the great gale, and almost broke off high from the ground. His death should put the most prudent on their guard when exposed to similar traps. of which our woods are full since the late tempest.

Died - Col. Eliphalet BULKELEY, whose death we announced last week, was descended from one of the most ancient and respectable families in Connecticut. He was born in Colchester in the year 1746, and after the requisite preliminary studies, entered Yale College, where he received his education. In this seminary it was his fortune to have the celebrated Oliver ELLSWORTH for his room mate, of whom it was often his delight to repeat many interesting anecdotes. Soon after leaving College, the troubles between this country and Great Britain assumed a threatening aspect, and the deceased was from their commencement, a firm and spirited advocate for the rights of his native land. When the American troops were collecting to drive the enemy from Boston, Mr. BULKELEY, then a captain, by his spirit and influence, led a full company of sixty men to join the standard of Washington. Always faithful to his duty - very active and intelligent - extremely pleasant as a companion, he was respected and beloved. He held a commission of the Peace in his native town for more than twenty years, and for nearly that time represented Colchester as a member of the General Assembly of Connecticut.
The Ancient and Honourable Institution of Masonary found in him a distinguished votary. By his assiduity the deepest and most profound mysteries were fathomed, and to those who were found worthy, explained. He presided for a number of years over the encampment of Knight Templars, in Connecticut, and there was no degree known on this side of the Atlantic of which he was not a member. Nor was his masonry confined to forms. A Mason's heartbeat within his breast, honorable, benevolent and sincere. As Col. BULKELEY grew in Years he lost none of his interest. His situation in life had given him a perfect opportunity to study character and to learn human nature, and well had he improved it. Full of anecdote and having a peculiarly pleasant manner of relating them, he was a living volume of interesting biography. The young were instructed by his conversation, and the old delighted.
The funeral of Col. BULKELEY was very numerously attended. A sermon was delivered by Rev. Ard HOYT, and the universal regret expressed at his loss evinced the high respect in which he was deservedly held. The funeral services, according to ancient usage, were performed by Lodge No. 61, of this place, and a resolution of the members to wear mourning, in respect of the deceased, unanimously adopted.

Pennsylvania Legislature - House of Representatives, Friday Jan. 5. The bill to extend the boundaries of Columbia County was, on being taken up for a third reading, moved to be postponed and the motion lost by the casing voice of the Speaker - on the final passage of the bill the votes in favour of it were 47 to 33. From old Northumberland when Union County was taken from it, two valuable townships of Chillisquaque & Turbut were also taken; those were after reannexed to Northumberland, & the bill above mentioned, is to reannex part of these two township again to Columbia County. They've caught him! They've got him! Who? Who? Who? Why, the fool that attempted to get money, dishonestly.

The day before yesterday a stranger came to Mr. REEDER'S tavern, and called for breakfast. He rode a fine horse; but had neither portmanteau nor great coat. After breakfast he went to Mr. WARD'S and got rigged out with a new coat, surtout and sherry valles - not seeming to care what they cost if he could have them ready made. At Mr. TRACEY'S he got a bear skin for his saddle, and some other articles for travelling. Thus rigged, he started on his journey - not without exciting strong suspicions that "something was rotten in the state of Denmark."

He had not been long gone when a raft man came into Wilkes-Barre from Reading, bringing an advertisement for a fellow by the name of WILSON, who had been bar keeper to a tavern in Reading, and had run away, having stolen a portmanteau from a stranger containing 900 dollars in bills and about 100 in specie. The description of the fellow was exact. A number of persons immediately went in pursuit, and Messrs. BROWN and LYON succeeded in arresting him at Tunkhannock. The fellow confessed the whole, and gave up about 700 dollars in bills and the whole of the silver. The reward offered was 100 dollars.

Horrid Murder and Suicide in Warsaw, Genesee Co., NY. About three weeks since, the wife of Abel WATKINS, of Middlebury, died, as was supposed of a fever; in consequence of which, WATKINS persuaded a neighbor and intimate friend of his, by the name of PERRY, to remove with his family into his house and take care of his children. Shortly after, Mr. PERRY was taken very ill with the cholera morbus, as stated by WATKINS, by whom his life was despaired of; and Dr. Chauncy L. SHELDON, of Warsaw, was sent for, who attended him through the day till nine at night and left him apparently much better. WATKINS attended him the remainder of the night, and PERRY died the next day. Mr. PERRY and Mrs. WATKINS being attended with similar symptoms in their sickness, together with an appearance of familiarity between WATKINS and PERRY'S wife, soon created a suspicion that WATKINS had poisoned both his wife and PERRY. Inquiry was made of Dr. SHELDON, (of whom WATKINS purchased his medicine) if he had purchased any poison of him; and it was ascertained that he had purchased one ounce of arsenic and some nux vomica. Dr. SHELDON and other persons conversed with WATKINS respecting it, who stated that he bought the arsenic for a man, but could not tell his name nor where he lived, but said he gave the poison to a certain dog, (which is still alive.) Suspicion increased, and WATKINS was advised to have the bodies taken up and examined, for the purpose of satisfying the minds of the populace, and clearing his own character. Accordingly on Friday the 5th inst. fourteen physicians appeared at the graves. The body of PERRY was dug up and examined, the stomach was taken out and carried into a house, where the physicians tried many chemical experiments on the contents, and it was ascertained beyond a doubt, that there was a considerable quantity of arsenic in the stomach, which was much corroded. The physicians reported that his death was occasioned by arsenic. WATKINS was informed of the opinion of the physicians about 3 o'clock the next morning; he shortly after went out of the house, and in about an hour and a half was found in the woods 15 or 20 rods from his house, suspended by a handkerchief to a small bush, his legs, part of his body, and his hands on the ground; on examination he was found to be dead. The physicians proceeded to examine the body of Mrs. WATKINS, and reported unanimously, that her death was occasioned by vegetable and mineral poison. A coroner's inquest was summoned to sit on the body of WATKINS, who shortly returned with a verdict of suicide. Yesterday Mrs. PERRY was taken into custody, and is this day to be examined.

WATKINS and PERRY, with their families, have resided in this country about a year. Two children have died out of each family since last fall, and it is generally believed that some of their deaths were also occasioned by the wicked hands of WATKINS. Mrs. WATKINS was delivered of a still-born child a few hours previous to her death.

Murder, Newark, N. J., May 14. It is reported that on Sunday last, at noon, a duel was fought at Hoboken, by a British officer named GREEN, and Benjamin PRICE, of the city of New-York. The latter was killed and the former, it is said was wounded. It is lamentable that the horrid practice of murdering should exist in a civilized country and particularly, that the Sabbath day should be selected as the most convenient season for the perpetration of a crime exceedingly offensive in the eyes of God and man. Major GREEN sent the challenge. Centinel.

Murder and Suicide. Yesterday afternoon, the 26th inst. between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, a man by the name of John BURWICK, who had been absent for some time, went to the house of Catharine BURWICK, his wife, living in the Third street below Shippen street. It appears that he went up stairs into the room where his wife and two children were, and drew a large Butcher's knife from his pocket, and exclaimed "I will kill you," she cried murder and fled to the window, and when in the act of making her escape, he stabbed her in the left side, and she fell from the window into the street. The breadth of the wound is two and a half inches, and depth 8 or 9 inches, of which she expired in about 3 hours. His son cried murder, but he let him go. He then cut his own throat, and expired instantly. Phil. True American. * * * *

Latest from New-Orleans. Extract of a letter from a respectable merchant in N. Orleans, to another in Baltimore, dated May 12. "A considerable part of our city and suburbs are now under water, owing to the breaking of a part of the levee about six miles above the city. Fortunately, the overflow has found its level, and is now going with great rapidity into Lake Ponchartrain; of course, the rise of the water in town has ceased." In another column of the newspaper it states that the crevasse or opening was two hundred feet and to prevent its widening, the sloop of war Louisiana was to be sunk in the centre of the breach, supported on each side by piles of 15 inches square. The inhabitants under the dread of an epidemic, which from the deposit of mud, and consequent exhalations, was considered inevitable, were seeking places of retreat and refuge during the summer. The wild beasts were leaving the woods, and several had been already killed in the city. It was not believed that a single house would escape being inundated, and the best hope was that heavy rains, by cleansing the surface of the ground, might yet avert the threatening epidemic.

We last week mentioned that a horse thief had just been shot on the mountain. The following appear to have been the particulars. Two persons were found to be concerned - One was taken, and two horses which were stolen. The other, of the name of MILLER, had succeeded in keeping out of the way of the officers of justice. A reward was offered, which induced several persons to attempt securing him. A person on horseback found the thief travelling the road on foot with a gun, & as he personally knew the fellow, he offered him his hand. It was received, and at the same moment the thief was declared his prisoner - who suddenly starting, pulled the man from his horse, and stepping back presented his gun, as if to shoot him. The man immediately knocked the gun from the hands of the thief, who instantly fled. The man took up the gun, and called the thief to stop, who continued however to run, and at the distance of sixty paces received the ball in his head. He died a few hours afterwards, and his remains have been buried at Bear Creek. The report of the inquest was "justifiable homicide."

Horse stealing and counterfeiting appear to be the sport of the day. Two persons were arrested for passing counterfeit money at Lackawanock, on Sunday last. They were escorted to town by the officer and his guard on Monday; and at the moment of stopping at the door of the inn, one of them suddenly spurred his horse, and attempted to escape. A hue and cry was immediately made and the fellow was overtaken and secured, after running about half a mile. They are committed for trial at the next term.

On the night of the 13th of August, Seneca PAGE and James SEYMOUR escaped from the prison in this place, where they had been confined on a charge of passing counterfeit money. These men have several times escaped the just punishment of the law, and not withstanding the charges which our police officers have received to guard them strictly, they left the prison without breaking any locks or bolts. The principal iron door of their prison room we are informed was left unlocked, and the outside door to the hall leading to the felons' apartment was left open, for the purpose we are informed , of letting in fresh air. 200 dollars reward is offered for their apprehension.

The Saunterer - On my return in looking for berries, I came by the way of the old fortification, where as I was passing along the little path, I found a small bundle of papers which appeared to have been dropped by some visitor there, but which did not contain the owners sir-name. having made some inquiries, and not finding a claimant, I send you a copy of one of the letters which follows.

Wilkesbarre, August, 1815.

Dear William,

I forwarded you the journal of my tour since I left the falls, from Tioga Point, four weeks since, which I hope you have received before this time. I concluded to pass down the East instead of the West branch of the Susquehanna, and enter this Town yesterday - or rather Borough I should say, for in Pennsylvania most of the Towns are called Boroughs - they do not send members to the legislature but they have certain corporate privileges, something resembling city corporations. This Borough is beautifully situated upon a level plain on the east bank of the Susquehanna, which is very gentle, and appears well calculated for the purposes of navigation, and for excursions of pleasure upon the water; yet I saw no pleasure boats, and suspect that the inhabitants have no taste for such diversion. The western margin of the river is shaded by groves of willows, elms, and the Pennsylvania alder, which support heavy vines of the native grape, forming the most beautiful shrubbery I ever saw.

The plain upon which the town is built is about a mile and a half wide, and about fifteen miles long, and surrounded by lofty mountains which form the "Valley of Wyoming," of which you have so often heard. This is the same Wyoming where those horrid scenes took place, towards the close of the revolutionary war. You will be surprised to learn that not one half of the inhabitants can tell you half so much about them as you already know. I have however gathered from some of the oldest inhabitants some interesting particulars, which I will give you in my journal which will be sent next week by our friend Mr. ___ whom I very happily met here.

I have visited the falls and the coal mines, to-morrow I go to see the remains of the old fortifications. This day among other rambles, I strolled into the burial ground, which is a walk you know I never neglect wherever I travel - Harvey is not the only one who believes that many a useful lesson may be learned from the tombs.

The burial ground is in the back part of the town, and forms a smooth level lot, of about four acres; which might be laid out with much taste and elegance, but appears to be very much neglected - very little system or regularity appears ever to have prevailed, and the graves are promiscuously places, frequently much out of their proper position. Many are grown over with weeds and grass without any stone or other monument to make the place. Some of which appear to be the graves of persons whose families are very respectable and still resident in the town, are placed by the side of others whom I found by inquiry to be entirely unconnected with the deceased, and again by the side of them were placed others who were equally strangers. You know how particular we are at _____ to have each family occupy their particular square. Who is there, that has not a wish, when the troubles of this life shall have passed away, to have his bones rest by the side of those, who have shared his sorrows and his joys; and partaken of his happiness or misery? If any such there is, he is no relation of yours or mine. Many of the inscriptions too, are very bad English, and betray a great want of taste in that particular - certainly our friends ought to have a little care concerning those few words which are to be all that remains to tell posterity who we were. Near a very old grave where there was no monument, some person had recently put down a shingle with this inscription; "Stranger, I was what thou art, and am what thou will be."

I did hope to find here the monuments of some of those who fell in the battles of Wyoming, but I found only one. You shall soon hear from me again. Yours. C.

Another Bridge. The Bridge over the Susquehanna was designed by architect, Lewis WERNWAG, Esq., upon the same model of the excellent bridge over the Delaware at New Hope, of which he was the inventor and constructor. This bridge is to be commenced immediately and to be passable by the first of November 1817. It is to consist of four arches, of one hundred and eighty-five feet each, and will be erected opposite centre street.

The Saunterer. No person having yet claimed the bundle of papers which I found near the old fortification, I send you a copy of another letter found in it.
Wilkesbarre, August 9th, 1815

Dear William,

The road to the old fortification, leads over what they call here the plains, I accordingly expected to ride through dust and sand something like that which we waded through on our way from Hartford to Westfield; but these plains are a continual succession of hills and vallies covered with fine farms and affording a pleasant and very extensive view of the Wyoming Valley. On our return we came by other plains which they called Abrahams Plains, these are low meadow by the side of the river. So you see names here, are applied in a very different way from our notions of things.

Abraham's Plains at Quebec, you know, are some of the highest grounds about the City, yet they are very level and are really plains. These however bear some resemblance to them, for they have been drenched by the blood of many a Wolf.

This town (Borough) might be rendered very beautiful with very little expence, but beauty is a consideration very little attended to. The Streets are not shaded with trees, and the passenger walks exposed to the burning Sun. All the public buildings are in the centre of the town where there is a square of sides of which, lie in an angle of 45 degrees with the Streets, but is not planted with trees, neither are the public buildings enclosed with any paling, so that they have a very naked appearance, as if they had been placed there, because there was no other place for them. The Academy however is an exception, for it is enclosed with a high board fence - something resembling a jail yard, which is not painted like the building, and looks almost as uncouth as the black Steeple at New-Haven. Band Street, affords a find prospect of the River, and would form a beautiful walk for the Ladies and Gentlemen of the Town, but boys of all ages are permitted to bathe along the Street at all hours of the day; if Alderman _____, lived here, I think this sport would be stopped, or transferred to some other place.

This town after a rain is the most muddy place I ever saw, and although there are great quantities of gravel, and paving stones along the river, yet the citizens seem perfectly satisfied to wade through the mud from one year's end to another. This happens to be court week, and as I passed about twenty rods from the Court House, I heard a great noise which induced me to go in. The noise proceeded from the Attorney addressing the jury who stood before them, not more than the length of his arm distant, but he bawled so loud, that I was induced to enquire of a by-stander if some of the jury were deaf: he replied they were not yet, but he concluded those who sat next the Speaker would soon be so. If eloquence consists in noise this man would make as great an Orator as our vendue-crier. Your's, &c. C.

Wanted. Lime, Lumber, & Stone. The subscriber having undertaken to build a Bridge over the Susquehanna River at the Borough of Wilkesbarre, is desirous of contracting for a quantity of large building stone, suitable for the abutments of the said Bridge, one fourth of which should be not less than four feet in length, and from six to nine inches thick, with flat surfaces. Also, from 3 to 4000 bushels of Lime, about 200 bushels of which to be delivered immediately, the remainder the ensuing spring. And from 200 to 300,000 feet of Lumber, agreeably to the bill, to be furnished the contractor. Lewis WERNWAG.

The frost was so severe in the vicinity of this place on Thursday night, the 29th of August, that many crops of corn, and most of the buckwheat is entirely destroyed. Our farmers are now ploughing up large buckwheat fields, to sow, where their corn had been previously killed in the Spring, so that they have lost the use of those fields for one season. Buckwheat is a crop on which much dependence is placed by the people of Luzerne; and as there will be very little corn or buckwheat, we fear that many families must suffer from an approaching scarcity.

Mr. CHAPMAN, On Thursday I attended the Spring exhibition of the members of Mr. NEWTON'S School, and I believe everyone who attended was highly gratified with the performance. The School I am informed is to continue, and I hope it may be more extensively supported, as an excellent opportunity is offered for perfecting learners in so desirable an acquisition.

The Saunterer. Wilkesbarre, Aug. 9, 1815

Dear William,

You see I have made a longer stay here than I usually do at country owns; the truth is, this is a pleasant valley I was ever in, and I have contrived to spend my time very agreeably. The stage office hotel is an excellent house, where I find every accommodation which the country affords. This you must know, is directly on the route from Philadelphia to the Falls of Niagara. The woods in the vicinity abound with game, and the river and creeks with fish; so you may suppose I have business enough. The inhabitants have done without a bridge for five years, although they have had a law for erecting one all the time, the reason is simply because they cannot exactly agree upon the spot where it shall stand.....There is also what they call a Shun-pike now building to bring the main road into the town in another place. This new road crosses a small swamp just back of the town, which it is generally supposed has caused much of that sickness which has recently prevaled here. The citizens are now cutting an artificial channel to drain this swamp, but it is with much difficulty the necessary funds can be raised...The Philadelphia Bank has a branch established here, and this institution being the first of the kind which the people have every had among them.....A bank among farmers, is like the landlord among gamblers, he is the only one who really makes money, the others only change from hand to hand. My friends are waiting for me to take a trip to Nanticoke Falls, where the famous PLUNKET'S expedition terminated. Adieu. Yours, C.

A Gig and Harness in good repair for sale at Dr. COVELL'S.

The failure of the crops of corn and buckwheat this season, will undoubtedly produce a great scarcity of grain; and bread stuffs will consequently be very high before the next harvest, if there should be as much wheat as usual carried to market abroad, and our distilleries go on at home. It is a well known fact, that this part of the state is usually furnished with whiskey from down the river, as cheap as we can make it, and it is a lamentable fact that much more liquor is used than is necessary or proper for the good of Society. Would it not therefore be advisable for the inhabitants generally to discourage distilling the present season? If the inhabitants of Luzerne could come to some general regulation of what nature it might prevent much want.

Appointment by the Governor. William N. IRVINE, Esq., of Harrisburg late colonel in the U. States Army is appointed Adjutant General of the militia of Pennsylvania.

On our instructions directing us first to explore the country, and ascertain the best and shortest distance from the Delaware, near the forks of the Mohawk and Popackton branches to the Great Bend on the Susquehanna, we proceed on by the way of the new north road and other roads to Samuel PRESTON'S, at Stockport, about three and a half miles below the said forks. At his place Henry DRINKER is making improvements. He has a saw-mill now in operation, and a grist-mill nearly ready to go. He has opened a road from this place to his improvement called Harmony on the Susquehanna, near the Great Bend.....Mention of Drinker's Road.....We purchased a canoe to proceed the survey and examination of the river Susquehanna, beginning at the line between the states of New York and Pennsylvania.....The Wyalusing falls present us with the first rocks that form any obstruction within this widely extended stream, (see the draught of Susquehanna, No. 2) There are in these falls six or eight small rocks in the channel, which is near the left sore in going down, and are in the way only in times of low water; these out to be removed or scaled down a sufficient depth to be out of the say....In the rapids a little above the mouth of Tuscarora Creek, there are five small rocks in the way lying between the island and the left shore....At the foot of the Horse race there were five small rocks in the way, lying in the channel between the island and the left shore. Nearly opposite OSTERHOUT'S there are a number of loose promiscuous rocks in the channel near the left shore.....Near the bend a little above the mouth of Lackawanick Creek, there are six small rocks in the channel near the left shore.....The Wyoming Falls are only a rapid formed by a rift of small rocks extending directly across the river and are but little in the way except in times of low water; the channel through them is near the right shore; the removal of ten or twelve rocks will make a good passage down them.....Nanticoke Falls are exceeding rapid having five feet four inches dectivity in the distance of seventy perches, the water discharging into the wide part of the river and forming a kind of basin which in time of high water makes a rough eddy of circular motion, the danger of which hath been too often experienced. The obstructions of these falls are a parcel of eight or ten rocks lying near the left shore a little beyond the falls. On the removal of these rocks the channel will be made straight and near the left shore. In passing this way they may escape both the rough water and the falls and the danger of the eddy.....From the head of Rocky Island to Nescopeck Falls (see draught No. 3) the water is shoal and interspersed with rocks, which are generally small and mostly loose and are scattered along the whole extent of this distance. The channel runs between the islands and the left shore. The old fish-dam and the rocks being removed so as to make the channel about two poles wide, disposing of them on each side to the best advantage will make it a good passage.....Nescopeck Falls are at times of very low water excessively rapid. Their declivity we found to be six feet, nine inches in the distance of fifty four perches. Nescopeck Creek comes in on the left side, at about the middle of these falls; the town of Berwick is situated on the opposite side of the river. The channel thro' these falls is near the left side. At the bend of these falls there is an old fish-dam; somewhat lower down, and also near the pitch of the falls, there are some few small rocks that ought to be removed or sealed, which amendment would make a good passage for boats down it. These falls form the greatest obstacle to the passage of boats up the river in times of low water. The great rapidity of the water renders poles almost useless; the situation of the shore with respect to boats going up, makes the towing line also of little use. The manner of getting boats up now is used in times of low waters, is by first unloading them, then part of the hands wade and push them up, whilst the others give their assistance with poles and towing lines; the difficulty therefore of ascending these falls at such times is very great. To facilitate the passing of boats up these falls we have concluded that it is necessary that a small canal should be opened along on the right side of these falls, within the bed of the river. This must be opened through the state rocks, which we found to be softish and favorable for the purpose. The part that must be cut through the rock aforesaid, will be twenty-two perches long, sixteen feet wide, and twenty inches deep, and so directed as to correspond with an opening in the rock above; that being done, together with a little opening of the gravel below, and extending a small wing from the canal upwards including to the right in order to deepen and collect the water, will perfect this passage.....The difficulty of going up these falls is experienced in the greatest degree in times of low water, which lessens in proposition to the rising of the river, and in times of high water it is ascended with ease, being but little more than a considerable rapid. A canal opened along within the bank at Berwick, agreeable to a plan proposed by Mr. OWENS, would be an advantageous situation for the great water works; and might be used both to public advantage and private benefit. Extraordinary Property of the Onion. The magnetic power of a compass needle will be entirely destroyed and changed by being touched with the juice of an Onion. This fact may seem trifling; but we regard it as one of the first importance; and investigated, may lead to consequences equally astonishing as the discovery of the magnet itself.

Died - In this Town on Tuesday last, Miss Harriet B. JEWET, daughter of the late Dr. JEWET of Montville (Con.). She was sister to the late George JEWET, whose death we announced three weeks since. Her complaint was a fever of the same kind as that of which her brother died, and was probably brought on by her long and constant attention to him, during his sickness. Feeble and pale she followed his remains to the grave, and returned to occupy the bed of sickness and death. She was an affectionate sister, a helpful and beloved daughter, and has left a circle of afflicted relatives and friends, to mourn her early passage to the tomb. [Poem]

Mr. CHAPMAN will have the goodness to permit a Stranger through the medium of the Gleaner to leave the following to the inhabitants of Wilkesbarre, as a testimony of his gratitude for their kindness and hospitality to an EXILE. "Farewell worthy and loved inhabitants of Wilkesbarre, I leave you, perhaps forever, by my heart remains with you. On my memory shall forever be engraved, the remembrance of our kindness and hospitality. I shall cease to be young, I may live to be old but I can never be unmindful of the attention which you have bestowed upon a Stranger. A melancholy but sweet remembrance will recall to my mind the delightful walks of Mill-Creek. I shall remember with gratitude the pleasing circles of Wilkesbarre, where poverty was no disgrace, and where the Graces were almost Devine. The Banks of the Susquehanna, where I have spent so many pleasant hours, are not lost to me forever, but they are left for you still to enjoy. Like a young vine which has lost its support my soul finds nothing to sustain it, but the recollection of the politeness I have received from you, for which I have nothing to return, but this sincere farewell. When beyond the seas, in a country remote from your hospitality, a pleasing recollection will soothe a melancholy hour, and that will be the Valley of Wyoming.

Died - On the 8th inst. in Susquehanna County, of a consumption, Mrs. Isabella, wife of James ROSE, in the 40th year of her age. Of this worthy and inestimable woman it may be truly said, that her conduct in the various relations of life was most exemplary. She was a dutiful daughter, a virtuous, loving and obedient wife, an affectionate and prudent mother, and a constant and kind friend. Living beloved, she died in respected and regretted by all who knew her. A painful and distressing illness she bore with patience and resignation. That she died in full hope and confidence of a joyful resurrection, through the merits of a blessed Redeemer, (in whom she firmly believed.) was fully witnessed by the respectable clergyman who attended her last hours, and by several professors of religion, her friends. This tribute to her memory, and to her many virtues, is offered by one of whom she was for many years a source of comfort and consolation under many privations of misfortune. She has left a large family to deplore her irreparable loss.

Fire. On Thursday at 11 o'clock A. M. a fire broke out in the joiner's shop of Mr. ABBOTT in this Borough. The progress of the flames was so rapid as to render every attempt to save even the smallest article ineffectual. The wind fortunately blew from the nearest buildings, and no further injury was suffered. The loss is considerable to a very worthy and industrious young man; but it is confidently expected from the known liberality of this community that he will not be permitted to bear the loss along. Do we require more, and yet more fatal experience, to prove the necessity of a fire engine, a fire company, and other steps in arrest the progress of this destructive element?

Died - At Kingston, on Wednesday last, Elisha ATHERTON, aged 52. For many years a respectable inhabitant of that place.

Died - (From Daily Advertiser, Philadelphia) On the 10th inst., in the 76th year o his age, at Belmont in the County of Wayne, Samuel MEREDITH Esq. Mr. MEREDITH was a native of Philadelphia, and was among the foremost of those patriots, who, at the commencement of the revolution, took an active and decided part with his country. He encountered the hazards and endured the privations attendant on the times, being personally engaged at the cannonade of Trenton and the battle of Princeton; and afterwards with his family suffering in exile on the occupation of Philadelphia by the British. His country held him in high esteem, and at a subsequent period conferred on him the appointments of member of the State Legislature, and of Congress under the confederation.
From early youth he was intimately known to Gen. WASHINGTON, who justly appreciated his worth, and appointed him, on the organization of the government in 1789, Treasurer of the United States. In this office he continued till the close of 1801, when he resigned it to enjoy, among his family and early friends, the pleasures of retirement. It is here in the domestic relations of husband, father, brother and friend that Mr. MEREDITH appears particularly to have been esteemed and beloved. His integrity, affability, cheerfulness, affectionate and hospitable disposition, peculiarly endeared him to all within the circle of his friendship and affection. While the young won by the charm of his frank and bland familiarity, felt ever honored and happy in his society. His patience under acute suffering from complicated maladies, which he bore without complaint, excited the deepest sympathy. This suffering his family endeavored to alleviate by the most tender assiduties. May their sorrow at his departure be softened by the reflection that it was not until he had arrived at an advanced age that he ended his well-spent life, and that he has left his virtues a rich inheritance to his children.

Died - In the meridian of life, on Sunday the 23rd March at Harrisburg, where she was called to pay the attentions of an affectionate wife to a sick husband, Mrs. Martha READ, daughter of the late Samuel MEREDITH, Esq. Her excellent qualities and amiable disposition, which shone with mild luster in the several relations of daughter, wife, mother and friend, intimately endeared her to the circle who most sensibly feel their bereavement at her departure.

Wilkes-Barre Bridge. We observe with much pleasure the progress which is making with the Bridge at this place. The work was commenced on the opening of the present season, under the superintendance of Mr. POWEL, one of the contractors. The two abutments are nearly completed, and the piers ready to be sunk as soon as the present swell of water has subsided. Present appearances give us the most ample assurance that the contract will be completed by the stipulated time.

The cut worm is destroying cornfields in Baltimore.....It has been well ascertained that sowing the wheat after the first frost, effectually prevents the fly. Farmers are too apt to sow early. On the Susquehanna in the sate of Pennsylvania, the fly is not known where the grain is put into the ground after the first frost in September. The writer from his own experience, can assert this as a fact.

Philadelphia, May 19. The cut worm. It is stated that the cut worm has already become very destructive to young Indian corn. An easy remedy is said to be found in making a few holes with a sharp stick about the hill, into which the worms fall and are unable to get out. These holes we are informed, have been found half filled with them in one night, by those who have made the experiment.

A very unpleasant occurrence took place in Berwick, on the day of the late Regimental Review in Salem. According to our information, a person of the name of CULP got into a dispute with another of the name of CUSTABATER; when CULP, seizing a rifle which was in CUSTABATER'S hands, struck him with it a violent blow, which being aimed at his head fell upon his shoulders, and broke the stock entirely from the barrel, leaving the barrel in CUSTABATER'S hands, who immediately struck CULP upon the head with it. CULP fell and lay some time, but at length recovering, he mounted his horse and proceeded homewards. Night came on, and early in the next morning CULP was found dead by the side of the road. He appears to have been intoxicated at the time of the conflict. CUSTABATER has given himself up for trial.

Discovery of another Mammoth, at the village of Chester, five miles ___ of Goshen, Orange County, on Tuesday and Thursday the 27th and 219th of May last. The discovery was made by and in the presence of Dr. Samuel L. MIREHILL, Messrs. William, Peter and Isaac TOWNSEND, John YELVERTON, P. S. TOWNSEND, MD, Townsend SEELY, MD, Miller WHARREY and Silvanus MILLER, Esq. The fact which led to the search originated from a conversation between the above mentioned gentlemen at the house of the Hon. Anthony DAVIS, in this village on Monday evening, May 26. It was mentioned in the course of this conversation, that a large bone had been dug up here in a bog meadow, about twelve years since, which at that time excited a great deal of remark among the neighbours. Mr. YELVERTON, brother to the owner of the bog meadow, recollected the occurrence distinctly, and on the following morning pointed out the particular spot. He felt satisfied himself that a number more lay undisturbed in the soil. After exploring along the ditch of the meadow for only a few yards, we struck upon something of the sound and feel of bone - and on removing out the mud and water, laid bare the massive relics themselves. The bones were carefully removed, and brought to this city on Saturday last by Drs. MITCHELL and TOWNSEND; and are now deposited in the apartments of the Lyceum, under whose sanction these gentlemen were travelling at the time of this important discovery. (Columbian).

Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 8. Sudden Death. Died on the evening of the 23rd ult., Miss Elvira COOPER, step daughter of William LEMON, Esqr., of this town. The time and manner of this young lady's decease, were peculiarly awful and affecting. It was to have been her wedding night; she had retired to her room to dress, apparently in perfect health, and in less than fifteen minutes, she was discovered to be a corps by her sister, who entered the room to assist her in dressing. By this time the friends had began to assemble to witness the nuptial ceremony; but alas! How changed the scene. She was a woman of delicate frame, and it is supposed her sudden death was occasioned by fainting in a cold room; that her blood chilled and stagnated before any relief could be afforded. It is probable if any person had been in the room with her, she might have been revived.

The bill for the relief of the surviving Revolutionary warriors, is yet on the table in the House of Representatives, and progresses slowly; though we hope, in due time, to report its passage, in the most liberal shape consistent with justice.

George Croghan wrote to Governor Denny:

Harris' Ferry, April 2, 1757.

Sir—

Thursday last, the 29th of March, I got here, and found about 160 Indians. The messengers sent to Ohio are not yet returned, and Teedyuscung* was gone to the Seneca country when these set out, and is expected soon in with no less than 200 Indians. As it is not certain whether he will come in at Easton or here, I have sent a messenger to Bethlehem to meet him, with a message.

I have met with some difficulty in removing the Indians from here, as many of their chiefs are dead since they had a meeting in this Province, and several of their people have been carried off by the small pox in Philadelphia. I was obliged to condole with them, which ceremony took up three days; and I have just now prevailed on them to set off for Lancaster. They are much afraid of sickness, and say, they always lose many of their people in Philadelphia.

These Indians are in great want of clothes, and I am of opinion that they should have some ordered before the general present can be given.

GEORGE CROGHAN.]

A report prevails that their families were cut off in Conococheg, near Colonel Chambers' mill. G. C.
—Prov. Rec. P. 196–'7.

In the month of July, 1778, refugees from the Wyoming Valley fled from the scene of the dreadful devastation of those settlements of murder, and sought protection at Harris' Ferry. Mr. Smith, in a letter to George Bryan, Esq., makes mention of these refugees here, and of the scenes of distress:

Paxtang, July 12th, 10 o'clock, 1778.

Sir—

I am this moment arrived at Harris' Ferry, and just now behold the greatest scenes of distress I ever saw, the numerous poor ran away from their habitations and left their all, and several families lost, part killed and scalped on their retreat; the most cruel butcheries ever known are practiced, wounded and others thrown into fires while yet living. The Inhabitants, however, are much distressed; the Wyoming people are undoubtedly, by the last accounts, entirely defeated. Northumberland county is evacuated. Not more than one hundred men with Col. Hunter at Sunbury; the Blue mountain is now the frontier, and I am afraid Lancaster county will shortly follow the example of the other county. The stores at Carlisle are something very considerable. I doubt not their object is to destroy that place. I am informed there is not that care taken that should be. I think it would be necessary to appoint some careful officer at that place, that would do the duty more punctually.

This party is large, have Colonel Butler at their head, one hundred regular troops at first; about the same number of Tories, but is increased to two or three times that number; seven hundred Indians, all armed in a most formidable manner, every one of them, exclusive of guns and tomahawks; as usual, each one has a large spontoon, and as soon as engaged, rushes on in a most dreadful manner. It is said they have field pieces, or swivels; and a number of light horse.

It is the earnest request of all friends to their country, as well as your humble servant, that something shall be done in the greatest haste. Be pleased to send an order for what arms are ready at Lancaster and Hummelstown, also for ammunition, and I shall exert every nerve in forwarding matters to the spot the men shall collect.

I am
Your Honor's most obedient
And most humble servant,
MATTHEW SMITH.*

Singular and Distressing Event - [Extract of a letter to a member of Congress, dated Troy, Monday Morning, Jan. 2, 1837] The lower part of our city has become a modern Pompeii. Last evening at 7 o'clock, the hill at the lower part of the city slid down, covering up houses, barns, &c., with men, women and children in them. It has covered up everything half way to the river, passing sixth, fifth and fourth streets to third street. Never was there a greater consternation. The whole city is alive, and on the spot, with thousands from other places, digging out the dead. They have found eight dead bodies and 10 horses. It is impossible to say how many lives are lost. The proprietor of the establishment of the Republican Farmer being unable to devote to the publication of the paper, that attention which its increasing patronage and extensive circulation demand, and expecting to be absent a portion of the summer, has placed it in the hands of Samuel P. Fatal Affair – We learn from several sources, that one day last week on the Catawissa rail road, at a hustling match, an affray took place between a constable and several Irishmen. It appeared that the constable attempted to arrest one of them, when they knocked him down; he however made his escape, hastened home, and collected a small party from a military company, of which he was captain, and returned to take the offenders. A large party of Irishmen met him and his company on the road – he stepped up to the man he was in search of, but was knocked down again – he raised his head and gave the word "fire;" they discharged their pieces, and killed three and wounded five or six others; the remainder fled. Considerable excitement prevailed in this community, in January last, in consequence of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of a man by the name of Stephen HAYNES. Many suspected that foul play was used in his abduction; others that he had strayed away. A negro with whom he had some difficulty was apprehended and examined. Nothing was however elicited tending to inculpate him, except some threat which were not sustained by other circumstances sufficient to cause his detention. He was, therefore, discharged. A few days since a scalp lock was found in the neighbourhood of the negro's dwelling, which was identified by the wife of HAYNES, as strongly resembling in colour her husbands hair, also a piece of the pantaloons last worn by him. Public excitement which had slumbered after the negro's discharge, was again aroused; he was taken into custody, and the additional circumstances which have transpired were considered by the magistrate before whom he was examined, sufficiently strong to warrant a committal to prison. We under stand that search is making for HAYNES' body but thus far without success.

A cold north east wind for many days past, was followed on Sunday morning, by a steady and constant fall of snow, which continued all day. Although the air was piercingly cold, yet the snow melted nearly as fast as it came down, and did not attain any considerable depth. The same quantity in winter, with the roads in a favorable condition, would have made good sleighing. The surrounding hills still wear a portion of their white mantle, and look winterish. We hope this may be the last visit of the congealed element with which we shall be "blessed" this season.

A most unfortunate accident occurred a short distance below the Nanticoke dam, on Thursday last. A boat loaded with merchandise for the merchants of this place, in attempting to pass a large breach in the canal, was drawn into it by the current, and wrecked. Fortunately, before the boat had entirely passed out of the canal, it struck a rock and remained fast, or it would have plunged into the river, sunk and been a total loss. As it was, the water made a clean sweep over it, destroying a large amount of the groceries and damaging seriously all its contents. The horses, of which there were six attached to the boat and driver ran a narrow resque of drowning and were only saved by promptly cutting the tow rope. The loss in merchandise is estimated at between 1500 and 2000 dollars.

The melancholy news of the death of our late estimable friend and fellow citizen Thomas H. MORGAN, will be found in the following extract from a letter written by an intimate friend of Mr. MORGANS family, to an individual of this place. We deeply deplore the irreparable bereavement of the family in the loss of a kind and affectionate husband, a tender and prudent father; and we mingle out sincere regret, in common with the people of his acquaintance in Wilkes-Barre, in the pain we feel at the loss of a generous and kind hearted friend, and an honorable and public spirited man.

Bethlehem, May 14, 1837

Dear Sir: It is with feelings of deepest sorrow that I have to inform you of the death of our mutual friend Mr. MORGAN. He departed this life this morning at 3 o'clock, after an illness of about twelve days. I need not describe the feelings which pervade the whole family, you can easily imagine them.

Extract of a Letter dated – Tunkhannock, May 15, 1837

Dear Sir: On Friday the 5th inst. between 5 and 6 o'clock, our village was visited by a hurricane of no ordinary magnitude. A few moments before it reached this place, an unusual appearance was described in the west, ominous of an impending storm and apprehensions were entertained that our village would be reduced to ruins. A result less disastrous, however, ensued; and although some injury has been sustained, the destruction was far less than was apprehended on the approach of the storm.

The Tornado having injured some buildings in Eaton, crossed the Susquehanna about two miles above this place, and in its passage from the river to this village two barns were considerable, and some other buildings slightly injured. In this village, the Presbyterian meeting house was moved about five feet from its foundation, and otherwise considerably injured. The Methodist meeting house, in an unfinished state, had part of the roof torn off; and a frame for a dwelling house partly enclosed, was entirely torn down. Some other buildings were injured, but to no great extent.

Its passage thro' this place was nearly from west to east, but on leaving, it bore to the south, and passed out of this township in a southeast direction.

Our village for a few moments was enveloped in almost total darkness, by the air being filled with dust and vapor. Fortunately no lives were lost, and no bodily injury occurred to any person or animals. In some places the width of the tornado may have been forty rods, but in others it was less than twenty.

The damage to the Presbyterian meeting house is estimated at three hundred dollars, and probably surpasses in amount all the other damage in this village. Yours, &c.

The Wilkesbarre Bank has wholly suspended specie payments. For a time past they have refused to redeem notes of a higher denomination than five dollars. A gentleman a few days since procured the endorsement of the Bank on a considerable amount of their money in order to secure the interest. He also instituted suits upon several notes we understand. A record should be obtained from every rag manufactory in the country as an evidence against the day of reckoning, when the Banks having forfeited their charters, are at the mercy of those they have so long cheated and plundered. If the community must be cursed with the insolvency of these miserable vampires whenever they may find it convenient after all the immunities and privileges they have delivered up to them – it is time they were rooted out and destroyed, and the abused people released from this cruel and wicked bondage.

Charles J. INGERSOL, Esq., has been nominated by the Democratic convention of the third congressional district as a candidate for the seat in Congress vacated by the decease of Francis J. HARPER.

We have neglected to mention that Dr. BEDFORD, one of the members of the Convention from this County, has been so much indisposed for three weeks passed as to be unable to take any part in the proceedings of the convention. We are happy to learn that his health is so much improved as to enable him to attend regularly to his convention duties. It is certainly much to be regreted that any democrat in that body should lose this health at a time when there is such vital interest depending, and such a strong and might phalanx of United States Bank minions to battle against.

For weeks past more or less rain has fallen every day. At present there is little appearance of it ceasing. This is most discouraging to the agricultural interests. Corn and all kinds of summer crops will be in a most precarious situation, if this state of things continues much longer. The river is at a fine rafting height, and the hardy industrious people of the north are passing down the river, immense quantities of fine lumber. We sincerely hope they may receive an adequate compensation for their risk and toil.

The Steam Engine attached to the mill of John SMITH, in Plymouth township, in this county, burst its boiler on Thursday last. The mill was, we understand, much injured, but no lives lost. Whether the accident was the result of carelessness or defect in the engine, we have not learned.

We understand that Mr. C. H. HAY has taken the Traveler's Inn, on Northampton street, lately occupied by George EICKE, and intends continuing it as a house of entertainment. We have no doubt that those who sojourn in our village will find, in Mr. HAY, an accommodating and agreeable Landlord, and his house a quiet and comfortable resting place. He is an honest and industrious citizen well worthy of public patronage, and deserving of support. We hope he may not be disappointed in his calculations on the liberality of the public.

Notice to Stockholders of the Nanticoke and Hughsville Turnpike Company – Whereas the Governor of the Commonwealth, in conformity with the act of Assembly, approved the first day of April 1836, has issued Letters Patent, bearing date the fifteenth day of June inst., incorporating the above named company; The said Stockholders are therefore hereby notified that n Election will be held at the house of John KOONS, in the village of Columbus, Luzerne county, on Tuesday, the 18th day of July next, between the hours of one and five o'clock P. A child, of about eight years of age, was drowned in the canal, at the first lock above this place, on Monday last. The child is supposed to have laid down on the bridge of the lock, fallen asleep, and rolled off into the water. It is supposed to have been in the water some time, as all attempts to rescuciate it proved unavailing. (no name given)

The establishment of the "Northern Pennsylvanian," located in Carbondale, in the northeastern part of this county, is offered for sale. To a young practical printer, the situation offers a very desirable opening. The job & advertising patronage, are superior to those enjoyed by country establishments generally, and the district for promptness, and punctuality in subscribers is more than ordinarily good. At a reasonable price, those who are disposed could not invest their money more profitably we think then this establishment.

While passing through Covington township, in the northern part of this county, a few days since, we were very much struck with the extraordinary growth of a field of orchard grass, a few stalks of which, we had the curiosity to pull up and measure, and found most of them to be seven feet in length. The extraordinary capacity of the northern and eastern portions of this county for producing grass, we long since learned, but that it ever attained to such a gigantic height, we have before no conception.

A Plea For Wyoming [Communicated]

Mr. Collins:

There is a subject of a good deal of importance pressing upon my mind, which I wish to open to the people of Wyoming. Will you allow me space in your columns to threat of the matter? Perhaps I may be in error, though after a food deal of reflection, I am more and more confident in my early convictions that I am right. To come to the point in the plainest and simplest manner, it is this: That the old settlers, and sufferers during the Revolutionary war, in Wyoming, their heirs and descendants, are entitled, from the general government, to a large amount of public lands or public money, perhaps both, as a remuneration for services performed, losses sustained, and personal sufferings, for which indemnification was justly due, and which has never been paid or received.

The situation of Wyoming, at the time of the revolutionary war, was strikingly peculiar. The settlement was not only on the frontier, but on the extreme frontier – far removed and remote from the generally inhabited part of the country. Divided by the great swamp (as it is termed) that lies along the Lehigh and its tributary streams, and the wide extend of barrens that bound those deep and inhospitable forests, extending in width from the Wyoming to the Blue mountains, a distance of nearly fifty miles from the nearest white settlement that could give them aid to defend or succor to support them, the Wyoming people were obliged to rely wholly on their own exertions, both for sustenance and security. Their position rendered them an out-post. They stood as sentinels on the extreme verge of the camp. By their situation they were one and all on duty – at all times and all seasons, every man might well be regarded as in service. If the savage wished to strike the white people, their exposed and unprotected situation gave the strongest hopes of success to the --- arauding and murdering parties. While, therefore, showed by the Wyoming settlements, the people below slept in comparative security, those of Wyoming were constantly watchful and on guard. Hence, so many small forts were erected on both sides of the river. Hence, when the husbandman went to his labor, he took his musket or rifle as a necessary companion. And hence, it may be justly averred that the whole male population of Wyoming, able to bear arms, were, from their very position, enlisted for and during the war – that they were like malitia out on constant, never ceasing duty; and in the performance of this duty, they guarded and shielded the lower settlements, preserving them in comparative peace and security.

Again: In the course of the war, several companies were raised at Wyoming for the regular army. The number of men who went out to Washington's camp, I am not at this moment able to state: Can any of your readers inform me? This I know that persons from Wyoming were in service so early as the battle of Long Island, and it was not until some time after that, the two companies of Capt. DURKEE and Capt. RANSOM were raised. But this; with the information that I have, I am bold to affirm, that, in proportion to the number of her inhabitants, Wyoming sent forth to Washington's army more soldiers; than any other township or settlement in any of the thirteen colonies. I have but very little doubt but the large number of high spirited, brave, patriotic men sent to the army, fighting for liberty, was one leading, probably a principal cause of the great expeditions of British, Indians and Toreis, under Col. John BURTER & BRANDT, which, in 1778, devastated these air plains. The attack was not by a mere Indian war party. It was a regular array: a strong detachment – a large force of over a thousand fighting men. An English gentleman, speaking of the battle, enquired of an intelligent citizen, what was the purpose of the attack? Was it part of a system, and in aid of some great movement, calculated to effect some important general object? These enquiries are natural; but the answer – the true answer, and the only answer, is this: It was the object of the British to strike Washington's army thro' Wyoming. The purpose was to force the troops from Wyoming, in camp, with Washington, to abandon him and return. It was intended, in revenge to burn and slaughter Wyoming, because of the aid afforded to the great cause of freedom. Let it be recollected, that at the time the two companies enlisted & marched out to Washington's company, the continental army was in the greatest distress – at the very lowest ebb, -- on the point, indeed of dispare and dissolution. Every man that could be obtained or retained was of the utmost importance. Then, and for these reasons was the blow struck at Wyoming.

Thus it is evident, this people have suffered for the general cause. Their ruin was brought on by general consideration; by aid to general interest. It follows, there fore, clearly, that when able, the general interest should make good to them, so far as possible, their sacrifices and loses.

The Battle took place and several hundreds were slain. All the inhabitants, old and young, who remained, women and children, were obliged to flee – flee for life – flee from destruction. It was July and the harvests were ripening – all was abandoned and all destroyed. Leaving fields laid waste, cattle driven off, houses and furniture burnt. The sufferings of the inhabitants was extreme. Many wen down the Susquehanna; many fled through the wilderness and from fatigue, hunger and the horrors of their situation, nearly perished. Well might the poor fugitives cry, if they dared stay by hill or stream to rest, "we sot our selves down the river bank; we hanged our harps upon the willows: yea, we wept when we remembered Wyoming." Such a scene of desolation and ruin and distress, the world scarcely ever beheld. The loss was of every thing. And all this sacrifice of life, of property; all this deprivation and suffering, it should be borne in mind, arose to Wyoming, from her attachment to the cause of liberty and independence; from the aid she afforded to the general cause, and therefore entitles her, from the general or national treasury, to remuneration.

While the National Debt remained unpaid, and the treasury was only sufficient to meet the legal demands upon it, a great many equitable claims lay dormant. Those of Wyoming slept. Since the National Debt had been paid and we have two hundred millions acres of land and a surplus revenue, many equitable claims, heretofore overlooked, have been recognized by Congress, and paid. The grounds on which allowances have been made are, for services rendered, for sacrifices of property, and for sufferings in the common cause. Now, as no part of this country performed more important service; as none made greater sacrifices of property, and sustained heavier losses; and as no where was there so great an extent of suffering, for which no remuneration has been received, I come to this conclusion:

That an application should be made to Congress for a body of land and a sum of money, for the old settlers and sufferers at Wyoming and for those who lost relatives either in the battle or by incursions during the war. JUSTICE

A child was accidentally precipitated into a well, and drowned in the lower part of this township, a few days since. [No name is given.]

Died – Suddenly in the village of New Troy, on Friday evening last, Samuel BREESE, aged 80 years. The subject of this brief notice was born in or near Morristown, New Jersey, from whence he emigrated soon after the revolutionary war, to the Wyoming Valley; where, by frugal habits of industry and temperance, he acquired a competency to smooth the cares of advanced age, and reared a family of nine children, who, it is believed, all now survive him.

in that struggle which separated the United States from Great Britain, he bore an important part. Situate as was the place of his nativity and early years of manhood, in the immediate vicinity of the central operations of the British Army, he was almost constantly engaged during the eventful period, with the Militia, in repelling the invading foe. Thus lived; and thus died Samuel BREESE.

The morning sun of Friday last, saw him apparently (although at the advanced age of 890 years) with all the buoyancy & elastick step of the middle aged – going forth to his daily toil, and at the close of the day returned from his cornfield to his dwelling – visited his garden – attended to his little matters a bout his domicile; seated himself in his chair. A faintness or swoon came over him? No the "golden bowl" is broken at its foundation; and he is numbered among those who were, and are not.

Reader! Another solemn and important admonition to you – to me: "Be you also ready; for in such an hour as we think not, the son of man cometh."

Died – In Kingston township on Friday last, at an advanced age, John GORE. The deceased was a highly respected citizen, and his death is deeply lamented by all who knew him.

Died – In Windham tp. on Thursday last, Mrs. WRIGHT, wife of Thos. J. WRIGHT, in the 29th year of her age.

To the Editor – Dear Sir – Feeling satisfied that the advertisement I caused to be published in your paper, last winter, was calculated to give wrong impressions to the community concerning the character and conduct of Silas STEPHENS, I desire to acknowledge, through your paper that I did wrong in publishing what I did. The Wyoming Claim

Married - By B. C. PHILIPS, Esq., at New Troy on Sunday morning last, Levi KNAUS and Miss Hannah LA FRANCE, all of Troy.

Died – In this borough, on Monday last, Helen M., daughter of Jeremiah SMITH, aged ten months.

Died – In Pittston township, on Friday evening last, of consumption, Mrs. Carlina, consort of Paul STARK, aged about 28 years. She has left a husband and four small children, to mourn their irreparable loss.

Died – At his residence in Kingston township on Thursday last, Col. Benjamin DORRANCE, of apoplexy in the 70th year of his age.

He came from Connecticut to Westmoreland as it was then called and settled upon a farm in the heart of the Wyoming Valley; no doubt, looking forward to long days of prosperity and peace: but how frail are all human calculations. War, with its attending evils, visited retired and peaceful Westmoreland – on the first of July 1778, the Wyoming Valley was visited by a large body of Indians and Tories – upon the third, the settlers went forth to repel them – the result of that day left the mother of Benjamin DORRANCE a widow, and he an orphan at the age of ten years. Upon the return of peace, he quietly settled down on the farm of his ancestors, where he resided until the day of his death. He was called by the citizens of Luzerne county to fill the office of Sheriff, county Commissioner, and for several years to serve them as one of their Representatives in the Legislature, all of which offices he filled with honor to himself and entire satisfaction to this constituents. One single fact of the strict probity of character maintained by him during a long life, is, that he was annually and unanimously elected Treasurer, by the citizens of the township, of a school fund, of almost $7000, during the last thirty years of his existence.

On Thursday morning, from his buoyant step and hilarity of spirits, no one who saw him would have believed that ere that day closed, that scarce a moments notice, and with only time to ejaculate "My God!" the vital spark would be extinguished, and nougat left of him here below but a tenement of clay.

Two sons mourn the bereavement of their last earthly parent, and have the sympaties of a large concourse of friends and acquaintances. (Advocate

6 Sept. 1837

A murder was committed several days since, at Whites Haven, upon the life of a man named MACOMB. Fourteen persons have since been arrested on suspicion, and are now confined in the goal of this county. One of them we understand, has turned States evidence, and consented to testify against his accomplices.

There is every reason to believe from the circumstances which have thus far transpired, that the murder was of the most cold blooded and deliberate character.

The Testimony given before the justice who committed the prisoners, we learn, was to the following effect: One of the murderers, by the name of GALLAGHER had formerly been the proprietor of a shanty, used as a grocery, which became such an intolerable nuisance to the community residing in its neighborhood, that its destruction was determined on. It was accordingly assailed by a party of persons, and destroyed. Among those engaged in the outrage, the deceased it is stated, acted a prominent part. This act excited the ire of GALAGHER, who awore vengeance against him. On the day of the murder, GHALLAGER was passing along the road in the vicinity of White's Haven, in company with his brother and twelve others, and discovered MACOMB alone. One of the party immediately accosting him in a friendly manner, shook his hand, and another stepped behind him and knocked him down with a stone. Six of the party then beat him until they supposed him dead, and then carried him to the bank of the Lehigh and flung the body into the river. The water was so shallow, however, that the body remained in the same place where it was flung. Some persons discovering a quantity of blood in the road traced it to the river, found the body, and instituted, at once, a pursuit for the murderers, which resulted in the above claim.

Little business of consequence, has yet been transacted during the setting of court. The case of the MACOMB murder, in consequence of the escape of FAGAN, the States Evidence, has been postponed. FAGAN has not been we understand retaken. A reward of seventy five dollars was offered for his apprehension – which has been increased to two hundred. We were in error last week, in stating that his escape was a hole broken through the wall by the side of the door, and the door unlocked by means of keys furnished him from some quarter, as was also another door through which they had to pass in effecting their escape.

Reward for the capture of Cornelius FAGAN, charged with the murder of MC COMBS, who broke jail at Wilkesbarre on 29th October last. $100 reward for any person who shall apprehend the said fugitive within the County of Luzerne, and secure him in the Jail of said county. $200 if the said offender shall be apprehended and secured in the jail of any other jail in the commonwealth. FAGAN is an Irishman, states his age to be 22 years, but from appearance is somewhat older; five feet one inches high, light complexion, brown hair; weak eyes; down look; scar on the face and scar on one hand, one near thumb. Hand on when he made the escape, coarse gray pantaloons, blue vest and white linen round-about, but as there was assistance rendered by persons outside the Jail wall, his clothes probably changed. Given under my hand and the Great Seal of Harrisburg, this seventh day of November, 1837, by the Governor, Joseph RITNER. Thomas H. BURROWS Secretary of the Commonwealth. Application has been made to Congress by petition for the Flag used by the troops of the Valley on the day of the dreadful Massacre. By the congressional minutes we observe that the petition was presented through Mr. UNDERWOOD of Kentucky. Now to our taste, there would have been more propriety in employing the member from this district or at least one from this state for this duty. He would have felt an interest in securing this memento of a most gloomy and disastrous field, that a stranger cannot, and his exertions would have been correspondingly strong. As a matter of common courtesy to a high minded and honorable man, the petition should have been sent to the member from this district. We truly hope that this venerable and primitive relic of a most bloody and fearful period in the history of this Valley may be given up. But at the same time, we cannot but deprecate and condemn a system of persecution which extends itself into matters of such general interest and feeling.

Late on Saturday evening the fourteenth instant, the trial of the two John GILLIGANS, BRADLEY, MOFFET and GOLLAGER, for the murder of John M'COMB, was closed, and the Jury retired. Early on Monday morning the strong tone of the Court House bell gave novice that they were ready to report their verdict. The house was instantly filled with spectators. The prisoners were brought in. They appeared calm and unterrified. The verdict was opened and the judgement of the Jury declared. It found black haired John GILLIGAN and red haired John GILLIGAN guilty of murder in the first degree; William BRADLEY, guilty of murder in the second degree; and Barney MOFFET and Hugh GOLLAGER, not guilty – and the two last named were accordingly discharged. The Counsel for the convicted moved for a delay of the sentence until they could have an opportunity to plead for a new trial; where-upon the Court of Oyer and Terminer adjourned to the 27th February next.

7 Feb. 1838
In stating the result of the trial of the GILLIGANS and others for the murder of MC COMB we inadvertantly omitted to give the names of the counsel engaged. As a neighboring print published a part of the counsel, but for some reason certainly undiscoverable to us, on the grounds of decency and fairness, neglected others, we give them below, as it may be interesting to our readers to know who were engaged in this difficult and exciting case.

We, the undersigned, citizens of Northmoreland, never gave our names to be published in the Wyoming Republican – Wm. B. CHAMPLIN & Wm. M. CHAMPLIN.

The meeting of citizens of Exeter, Northmoreland, Dallas and back part of Kingston met April 9th, and included several old patriots of the Revolution, including Capt. Artemadoras INGERSOLL, Samuel VANSCOY and Dr. John S. JENKS.

25 April 1838
Mrs. VAN ARSDALE aged 50 years, according to the Somerville (New Jersey) Messenger accompanied by her husband, a very old man while returning home in a wagon near Millstone Basin last Wednesday, was burnt so badly by her clothes taking fire, that she expired in ten hours after the occurrence. It appears Mr. VAN ARSDALE had deposited his pipe in the basket under the wagon seat, in which was some cotton purchased at a store. Before proceeding three hundred yards, the cotton in the basket was in a flame of fire which communicated with the clothing of the woman, and burnt her so shockingly as to deprive her of life in spite of every exertion to rescue her from her peril.

28 April 1838
The Constitution of Pennsylvania Amended.

To the Public – Whereas, my wife, Christiana, has left my bed board without any just cause or provocation – this is to warn the public against trusting her on my account as I will not pay any debts of her contracting unless compelled by law. Isaac GROBE, Nescopeck.

Democratic Meeting of Northmoreland, Exeter, Dallas & the back part of Kingston, held on 9th April at the School-house in Unison. Capt. Artemadoras INGERSOLL, a patriot of the Revolution was appointed President. Samuel VANSCOY, Dr. John S. JENKS (Revolutionary Patriots), Joseph MONTANYE, Chester BROWN, David B. ROGERS, Vice Presidents; John WILLIAMS and Myron N. INGERSOLL, Secretaries.

For the last week, the Susquehanna has been at a height unprecedented at this season for some years. The lowlands in the neighborhood of the river have been inundated and great damage to the crops sustained. The winter crops which had just been planted, are it is supposed, entirely ruined where the water has overflowed. This is certainly disastrous for all interest's.

We intended to notice last week that the fire was doing great damage on our mountains on the eastern side of the river, particularly upon their north western decliyities. Much valuable timber has been destroyed, particularly rail timber. The late sever rains have however quenched the devastating element. The practice of firing the woods, is a most wanton sac of depredation, and the perpetrators should be hunted like wild beasts, and brought to punishment.

The crops upon the uplands and on soils not liable to the action of the river, look highly promising. The early part of the season and part winter were extremely favourable upon the fall sowed grains, and nothing has the late long continued storms would have prevented a rarely abundant yield. A fair average crop is however promised from present appearances.

Caution – I hereby caution all persons and warn them not to purchase any, nor all of three several notes of hand, given by the subscriber to John CHATFIELD, for fifty dollars each, dated in the fall of the year 1829, as I have received no value for the said notes, I will not pay them unless compelled by law. Wm. SHAW, Tunkhannock.

Melancholy – A man by the name of HARRIS attempting to clean the well of Mr. S. PUTERBAUGH in this Borough, was so badly injured that he died in a few hours. As near as we can learn, the circumstances were as follows: The well was found upon examination to be filled with foul and impure air called "damps." A lighted candle let down into the body of the well was immediately extinguished. As a remedy, a bunch of burning straw was thrown in, after which Mr. HARRIS descended. He, however, found the air to be still in so foul a state as to render it dangerous to remain, when he called to those above to haul him out. The well was about thirty feet deep, and contained at the time a foot or two of water. When he had been drawn to within about ten feet of the top, he let go his hold upon the rope to which he was suspended and fell to the bottom. It was some time before any one could be induced to venture down and help him out. When however, they did so, he was found in a state of total insensibility. After applying restoratives however, he revived to partial but most distressing consciousness, and after lingering in great pain a short time, expired. We believe no outward bruise or wound was visible upon his body, but as he expectorated blood freely, it was believed that he was injured internally by his fall, besides being badly affected by his exposure to the nauseous vapors of the well.

Eaton Township Democratic Meeting held at the house of Manual PESTANA, on 22nd inst. Samuel DAILY, of Falls, called to the chair and James PILGRIM and Ashbel LEE appointed vice Presidents, with Morris ROBERTS and Miles SWETLAND, Secretaries. Notice – Whereas Collins WOOD, of Susquehanna County, through fraudulent pretences and representations, has obtained from us two Notes or Obligations dated Dec. 1st, 1837, one for the sum of Twenty-five dollars payable six months after date, the other for the sum of One Hundred and Fifty dollars payable 18 months after date. This is to caution all persons against buying said notes, as we have received no value therefore, and are determined not to pay the same unless compelled by law. Mason F. ALDEN, Wm. F. ALDEN, Washington.

Died – In Eaton, on Sunday, April 7th, after a long and painful disease of nearly three years, Jesse M. LEE, aged 27 years, 5 months and 13 days.

Orphan's Court Sale – Estate of Nicholson MARCY, deceased, will be exposed to sale by public vendue or outcry on Tuesday the 30th April at one o'clock P. M.: Land in the township of Tunkhannock, bounded by Tunkhannock creek, James KELLY, Abel MARCY, containing 66 acres. John R. COUDREY, Administrator. Jasper FASSETT, Clerk O. C.

Storm and Freshet – On Thursday last, after twenty days unusually fine weather, it commenced raining, and continued until Saturday morning to storm with great violence. The Susquehanna, which was still at fair rafting height, soon filled up and overflowed its banks, causing considerable damage in this neighborhood; and by the rafts, logs and timber which came frequently floating on tits surface, it appeared that much more injury was done above us. The aqueduct on the Lackawanna division at the mouth of mill Creek is severely damaged by the flood, two of the main piers being nearly demolished. The navigation upon this division will consequently be interrupted for some time to come. We understand that the Northern stage drove into the Wyalusing Creek, this side of Montrose, on Friday night, owing to the severity of the storm, and upset, with three passengers inside, (two of them ladies who came very nearly being drowned, a the creek was swollen to the most formidable torrent. The mail was almost destroyed by its immersion in the water for the some time, and came near being lost. The horses, we understand, after much difficulty, were extricated from the stage. Little further damage was sustained.

We regret to learn that the feeder dam across the Lackawanna river at the head of the Lackawanna division of the canal was carried away by the freshet on Saturday night.

We suspect that no tract of earth assuming the sounding title – the imposing patronymick of "the Pubic Square," ever represented so extraordinary an appearance as did the angular bedeviled tract thus yelept, in this village, during the storm of Thursday, Friday and Saturday last, and even at the present time. Scarce a foot of earth beyond the sidewalks is visible, a perfect deluge of water pervading its whole surface. It looked very much as "the oldest inhabitants" represent its appearance during the celebrated "pumpkin freshet."

27 May 1840

The people of Wyoming will doubtless renew their application to the Connecticut Assembly, for aid to finish their monument. They ought to do so, and Connecticut should not hesitate a moment to grant it. Three thousand dollars, a paltry sum out of her full treasury, and for such an object. The state has more than a million at interest. Where did this come from? The whole world knows. From the sale of her western lands. How come those lands confirmed to her? Here again every body is aware that the Wyoming people, by their enterprise and sufferings in setting up, asserting and defending the state's claim west of New York, were the main and efficient cause of the western reserve being confirmed to her. Between two and three hundred Connecticut men fell in the Wyoming massacre – fighting under the Connecticut flag. Their bones lie unburied. It is time they were decently interred; and every hour they remain above ground, they cry shame, shame, to the parsimony and injustice of the state in defence of those rights and laws those patriots bled. N. Y. Com. Adv.

We observe in looking over the proceedings of the Connecticut Legislature, that on the 14th inst. the memorial of a committee on behalf of the sufferers of Wyoming for aid to erect a Monument, "was referred to a committee consisting of one from each county in the State."

Died – In Pittston Township on Monday last, Eliphalet SMITH, aged 67 years. He was a most reputable and useful citizen, sustaining an unsullied reputation throughout a long life and has died esteemed and regretted by a large circle of friends and relation.

A Child In The Woods – It is supposed that a child, about twelve years of age, has been wandering in the woods for some time past in the northwestern townships in this county, in a wild or deranged state. The circumstances upon which the supposition is founded, as related to us by persons of strict credibility, are these; and we give them publicity, in order that if any family residing in or near the townships mentioned have missed a child, they can form some surmise of where it probably may be found, if living.

On Friday the 16th July, a female child, dressed in a blue calico frock, entered the house of a Mr. HARRISON, residing near the line between Northmoreland and Monroe townships, and requested the children of Mr. HARRISON to give her some drink, (the elder members of the family being absent) a drink of milk was given, and she was asked by the children to remain until their mother should return, which would be soon. The idea of seeing a grown person appeared, as stated by the children, to frighten her, and she immediately fled with every appearance of fear. On the Monday following, the elder members of Mr. H's family being again absent at a school meeting, the child entered his house, and , as before, asked the children for a drink. This was again given, and it was observed that she had become nearly naked, the most of her clothes being apparently torn off by the brush and briars. The children requested her to stay, stating as before that their parents would be at home presently, but she immediately fled upon the suggestion that she would meet grown persons. The last time she was seen, was the following Tuesday, when she again appeared in a state of nudity, at Mr. HARRISON's, and the elder members of the family being absent harvesting, asked the children present as before for some drink. She appeared very much emaciated, not being able to hold the cup to her lips, which was done for her by the children. The children were unable to induce her to remain, and she again fled to the woods, since which nothing has been seen of her, and it is supposed, from her being weak and feeble then last seen, she is dead.

Diligent search has been made by the people of the townships for the child, but they have been unable to discover any thing further than her tracks in marshy and swampy places, and situations where she had apparently rested during the night.

Died – On Wednesday morning, February 24th, Benjamin L. PERRY, son of B. PERRY, Esq., of this borough, aged 26 years. His brief career had been one of almost constant suffering, and slow wasting disease. From the cradle to the grave, his earthly cup was full of bitterness. The few who knew him well, will long remember his frail form and hectic cheek, and every recollection will be chastened by the fond hope that he has gone where sickness and sorrow shall no more afflict him forever

Died – On the 19th Feb., at the residence of his father, in New Troy, Preston GAY, aged 37 years.

5 May 1841
Your paper has not, I think, contained any notice of the death of Col. Lazarus DENISON, which took place at his residence in Kingston, Jan. 24th, 1841. He was if not the first white male child born in Wyoming, was certainly among the number. Upon this point there may be some diversity of opinion, but such was the statement of Mrs. Phebe YOUNG, one of the earliest settlers of the Valley, whose memory retained, with astounding accuracy, almost every incident connected with its stirring history. His age was about sixty-nine.

Our Candidates: Jacob BENSCOTER and Chauncey SHERWOOD, are upon the Ticket for Commissioner and Auditor. They are both good and substantial men, abundantly qualified for the duties of the respective offices to which they are nominated. Mr. BENSCOTER is a plain farmer, of German origin; much respected among his neighbors for his sound judgment. No objection can be brought against him. Mr. SHERWOOD comes from old democratic Falls and is of course "all right." Falls deserves well of their other townships for her reusing majorities in favor of democracy; and we hope to see her merits substantially recognized. Died – In Lehman, Aug. 7, John WHITEMAN, aged 69 years.

Died – In Bloomsburg, on Thursday last, William RITTER, aged 29(?). The circumstances of Mr. RITTER'S death are truly melancholy, and warns us of the correctness of the assertion, that "in the midst of life we are in death." He had been sitting in his door, whittling a stick with a pocket knife. He rose, went round his house a couple of rods in his pig stye, with his knife open in his hand. It is supposed he placed his hand upon the top of the fence, and stepping upon a rolling stone he fell forward the knife entering his right breast near the centre, between the second and third rib from his collar bone, which severed the main vein from the head of the heart. He called for assistance, which was at hand and was helped to the house. He survived about three hours, dying, no doubt from the effects of inward bleeding. He has left a wife and four children to deplore his sudden and untimely death (Democrat)

Noble Game – Dr. WEST, of Braintrim, was a passenger in the Philadelphia stage to this place on Saturday evening last. He had with him a double-barreled rifle; and while the state stopped to water at Bear Creek, he walked on ahead, with his rifle in his hand. In ascending the hill this side of the creek, he espied a noble buck, about twenty rods distant from the turnpike, playfully throwing the small bushes about with his head. The Doctor approached to within about fifteen rods of him and fired; the fellow gave a few leaps and brought to, when the Dr. gave him the contents of the other barrel. He then bounded off, and ran about thirty rods, when he came down, yielding up life, as our forest deer always do, only with the last drop of blood in their body. He was subsequently brought in, and weighed in quarters when dressed, about 150 pounds. In a few weeks more, he would have reached 200. Mr. GILCHRIST, of the Phenix, regaled his guests with some luxuriant steaks from his saddle. This fellow had evidently been an old rambler in our forests, and has had some narrow escapes from the keen Lehigh hunters; one of his ears exhibiting a round hole, evidently the mark of a ball. Dr. WEST is somewhat celebrated as a "deer-slayer," in his own country; but we doubt whether he ever before executed a feat excelling this in skill and promptitude.

To The Public
In establishing a political newspaper, there appears at present, three difficulties to be considered and overcome – to find any thing of a political nature worth publishing – to give offence to none, in publishing it – and to find a sufficient number of honest intelligent subscribers to read it when published. Policies, has now, become a game, in which the office-holders are the Kings; the office-seekers the Knaves; the Public the Pack and the poor Printer the mere Table or thing played upon.

In commencing the publication of the Democrat, the Editors are, in a measure, aware of the responsible duties they have assumed. To become public purveyors, is certain to elicit censure from some quarter; for among an infinite variety of tastes, it would be impossible to please all. What to the mental palate of one, would be stimulating food, to another, would be as insipid as water to the dram drinker or sober sense to the fanatic. The Democrat will therefore waive all pretentions to universal favor – its political course will be consistent and Republican – regardless of men, it will firmly and unyieldingly sustain all measures of the government, calculated in their operation to secure the "greatest good to the greatest number.

The Editors believe a public newspaper to be an organ thorough which the voice of the public should be heard. The columns of the Democrat will therefore at all times be open to the expressions of public opinion: it will further, particularly be devoted to the interests of the northern Townships of Luzerne county, and opposed to that influence at the Centre that would rob them of their just rights. Tunkhannock, we believe, from its position – being located on the route of the North Branch Canal, at the confluence of the Susquehanna and Tunkhannock rivers – surrounded by an extensive and fertile country, abounding in mineral & agricultural wealth – the centre of its trade, must , on the completion of the North Branch, become a place of extensive business. It is at present a thriving Village, and in the event of a New County, comprising the northern Townships of Luzerne, being set off, it would most probably from it favorable location become the seat of Justice. To the New County measure, therefore, the Democrat will be particularly devoted; and the Editors stand pledged, to co-operate with the ----le, in using all honorable means in their power to obtain so desirable an object.

To our local politics also, the Democrat will not be wholly inattentive. The Editors are Republican in their principles and they have heretofore endeavored to be so in practice. They only ask in common with their Democratic brethren, a free and full expression of the sentiments of the party in our County Conventions, independent of Central dictation. They ask, that in the distribution of offices the interest of the Townships should be considered – that their voice should be heard. They hold it subversive of Republican principles that a petty oligarchy at the Centre should assume the whole control of political affairs in the county, and a portion and divide among themselves the offices in the gift of the people, as though it were their right by hereditury succession.

We are aware, that in thus honestly expressing our opinions, we shall incur the displeasure of a few ambitiuos men; but in times remarkable for good reasoning and bad conduct, for sound rules and corrupt manners, when independence of principle consists in having no principle on which to depend; when patriots will hold any thing except their tongues; keep any thing except their word, and lose nothing patiently except their character, it becomes our duty, as public censors, not to cover the truth but to speak out – our only object and wish is, that the public good should always be considered paramount to private or individual interest, and in the selections for office, men of principle should in every instance be the principal men.

A man named William CAIN, has been arrested at Salem, N. J. on suspicion of having murdered a female named, Caroline HULL.

An Englishman named Thomas MARSHAL was accidentally killed a few days since, by the caving in of a bank of earth, near the Canal in Luzerne County.

The article in the last Wilkes-Barre Advocate, in relation to the Towanda Bank, it is feared, may have a tendency to induce holders of the bills to part with them at a discount. Those who understand the business say there is no occasion for alarm.

Spots on the Sun. It is stated in an eastern paper, that with a Telescope, five distinct clusters of dark spots on the Sun may now be seen, (May 5th). The two clusters near the centre of the Sun extend upwards of fifty thousand miles in length by about twenty thousand in breadth. It is shrewdly suggested the above may account for the cold weather and backward spring we have had.

Drowned – John SHIBLEY, a much esteemed and highly respectable citizen of this Township, was drowned in the Tunkhannock Creek on Saturday last. He left home on business, and in attempting to cross the stream on a raft, the slabs of which it was composed, separated, and he was precipitated into the water – he has left a wife and three children to mourn his loss.

Radishes that are grown very early in the season, are of slow growth, and inferior to those grown after the weather is warm enough to hasten them, as the faster they grow, the more tender, and the finer the flavor.

The following interesting communication we had the o pleasure of receiving this morning through the Post Office, the author of which most probably forgot to pay the postage:

Wyoming Claim – The resolution reported by the committee, appropriating $3000 for the purpose of adding in the erection of a monument to cover the bones of the Connecticut people who lost their lives in the memorable massacre in the Valley of Wyoming in 1778, passed the House by an overwhelming majority on Wednesday evening. The Senate saw fit, however, to continue it to the next General Assembly, in which the House afterwards concurred. We regret that this course should have been taken, especially as the objection to the resolution seemed to be on the ground that it would be impolitic. The justice of the claim cannot be controverted, and we believe a large majority of the inhabitants of this State are convinced that it ought to be allowed. Hartford Current.

A destructive Tornado accompanied by hail, occurred in Spencer, Tioga Co., on Tuesday of last week. It commenced near the village of Spencer, and passing in an easterly direction destroyed nearly everything in its course, about nine miles in extent and three or four miles in width. Grain of all kinds over the entire range of the tornado was almost totally destroyed. Trees were stripped of their foliage. Fences were destroyed and the windows of houses, were nearly all broken. A person who witnessed the storm, states the hail stones were nearly as large as hen's eggs. Some were found the next morning which measured three inches in circumference. Bradford Porter

Hops! Hops! The Subscriber will pay the Cash for any quantity of good Fresh Hops, delivered to his Distillery in Tunkhannock. W. B. MONEYPENNY.

Wyoming Monument – The Wilkesbarre papers have of late been pretty much filled with the details of the Wyoming Monument festivities. The Lady's Fair and Monumental Dinner have been excellent subjects for the prolific pen of Mr. SISTY of the Advocate – subjects to which had has not failed to improve. In his vivid description of the "Lady's Fair," he carried the reader along with him into the midst of the scene. He enters with him into the Court House – the winning smile; the splendor of the decorations; the endless variety of articles; the music, all seem presented to his view, and at the conclusion he looks involuntarily around him for the reality of the vision, that has been thus conjured up in his mind. The ladies of Wyoming certainly deserve great praise for what they have done; without their patriotic exertions, the brave men, slain in the defence of their beautiful Valley, might have been left without a momento to mark the spot where they fell. A thought strikes us now, that it would be a good plan to commit the fiscal affairs of Pennsylvania to the care of the ladies. If they were to display half of the zeal in their management, that they have in collecting funds for the Wyoming Monument, in two years the main lines of our Canals would be finished and the State in the high road to prosperity. The experiment, at leas is worth trying – we go in for it.

WYOMING MONUMENT
(July 1837)
We sought the spot, and peaceful was the scene,
As through an infant's chamber it had been;
A summers cloud just veiled the sun's bright glare,
And nature laid her richest carpet there;
A murmer soft and low from stream and grove,
Seem'd soothing as the voice of one we love.
As though aerial spirits loved to keep,
Their watch around this couch, where patriots sleep;
Thus is the spot so beautiful and blessed,
Where from that day's fierce toil they sunk to rest.
That day of toil, that earned they glory, fame?
No, their bold hearts ne'er throbbed at glory's name,
But deeper, holier feelings there prevailed,
When haughty foes their humble homes assailed.
and 'tis a holier voice than that of fame,
Shall still such sufferings, and such deeds proclaim.
And in the light that mem'ry sheds around.
As we approach the consecrated ground.
Borne on the swelling tide of feeling strong,
We see them come, a living, honor'd throng
Calming the tribute, patriot hearts can pay
When glory's loud acclaim had died away.

23 July 1841
The Wyoming Literary Institute, July 14th passed a vote of thanks to A. SISTY and W. W. LOOMIS Esqrs. for Odes composed by them for the anniversary celebration of the Society – Umph! Thankful for small favors.

Appointment by the P. M. General – P. M. OSTERHOUT to be Post Master at Tunkhannock, Vice W. B. MONEYPENNY removed. We have heard no case whatever assigned for the above removal. Mr. MONEYPENNY, though not a warm partizan, belongs to the whig party, and as far as the duties of the office are concerned, we believe has given universal satisfaction. Mr. OSTERHOUT, also, from the zeal with which he enters upon his duties, and the gentlemanly and obliging manner in which the business of the office is conducted, bids fair. The secret cause of the removal is with the initiated – we leave it there.

We have received the first number of the Athens Scribe, edited by O. N. WORDEN – Whig in politics. Its appearance is neat and Workmanlike. In an editorial capacity, we have formerly know the scratch of Mr. WORDEN'S pen, and were he not enlisted in a bad cause, his talent and tact in conducting a newspaper would undoubtedly insure success. However, for the benefit of the craft, we give him "God speed."

We deem it proper at the present time, to remind our democratic readers, that the usual time of electing Delegates, is on the first Saturday in September, and the Delegates are to meet in Convention, at the house of the late Philip MYERS, in Kingston township, on Tuesday following, (September 7th) to nominate suitable men as candidates for the county offices, at the approaching fall election. The recognized usages of the Democratic party in the county, further require, that each township and borough, at the time and place of electing Delegates to the county Convention, elect two persons to act as a township committee of Vigilance, for the ensuing year.

A Tax on Tea, Coffee, Sugar, Molasses and Salt!! We do not remember a more bare-faced and villainous proposition than that of the Federal Whigs in Congress, to tax the poor people of this county 20 per cent, on tea, coffee, &c. in order to make up the defiency in the revenue to be occasioned by the distribution of the public lands! [See article for more information]

Dreadful Steamboat Accident – Burning of The Erie on Lake Erie – Over Two Hundred Lives Lost! The Erie left her berth at Buffalo August 9, for Chicago between 5 and 9 o'clock P. M. on Monday with a large number of passengers.... The fire was discovered about ten minutes before 8 o'clock, off Silver creek, a distance of 25 or 30 miles from Buffalo. The flames first appeared running rapidly across the boiler deck, a permanent platform of a foot or two in height, to protect the boiler where it projects above the main deck. The boat's head was immediately directed toward the land, which was five or six miles off. Twenty minutes only had elapsed form the beginning of the fire but after the intenseness of the heat had forced overboard every other person, Capt. TITUS threw himself into the water and abandoned the boat to its fate. The few who then remained alive were tossing in the midst of a heavy swell, dependent upon the precarious support, one of an ore, another of a plank or box, and liable every moment to lose their hold through exhaustion and the benumbing effects of fright. The steamer, De Wit Clinton, and it's Capt. SQUIRE, saved about 27 passengers, some badly and some slightly burned. [See article for more information]
The steam boat catastrophe, is of a nature almost too horrible to be contemplated. Among the lost, whose names do not appear in the account, are Mrs. SPENCER and two children and Mrs. DOW, of Springville, Sus. co., also Mr. E. W. CAMP of Harrisburg, a gentleman well known in this place as a business man, and a contractor on the North Branch Canal.

Suicide - Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock, the residents in the Neighborhood of Rittenhouse and Harrison streets, in the southwestern part of the city, wee surprised by a discharge of fire arms, which proceeded from the residence of Charles E. HEATH, at the corner of Harrison street. Upon inquiry being made, it was ascertained that Mr. HEATH had, in a fit of temporary derangement, induced by imaginary difficulties, committed suicide by blowing his brains out with a rifle. Upon the table was round a paper declaring his determination. The Coroner held an inquest on the body in the course of the afternoon, and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by shooting himself with a rifle, while laboring under a temporary derangement. He was about 38 years of age and unmarried. U. S. Gazette

--William S. JAYNE, Esq.: The individual whose name heads this article is the Democratic candidate for Treasurer of this County – and a better selection could not have been made. For the information of those who are not personally acquainted with him, it may be proper to state that Mr. JAYNE, as far as relates to honesty, integrity and competency, stands second to no man in Luzerne county. He is a firm democrat in principle, and has endeared himself to his neighbors of all political parties, by his counciliating manners and uniform uprightness in all his dealings. He has officiated for several years as a Justice of the Peace in the township of Washington, where he resides, and in the discharge of the duties of that office he has given universal satisfaction. He is, in short, just the man to fill the office for which he is nominated. To the question, "is he honest – is he capable?" there can be but one response from all who know him. There is another fact that should be known. Mr. JAYNE has been unfortunate. His wife has been the constant subject for the Physician's care for the last eleven years – and despite of his unceasing industry upon his little farm, and in his office of the Justice of the Peace, he is still a poor man. The sickness of his family has swept away his hard earnings! The proceeds of the Treasure's office would, therefore, be to him of very great consequence, when to others it would be different. Without saying any thing against Mr. MINER, the whig candidate, I have thus hastily sketched by reasons for hoping that Wm. S. JAYNE will be triumphantly elected. A Voter

Lost Child – Nearly two months since an interesting boy, eight years old, was lost in the woods on Summit mountain, eight miles from Maunch Chunk. He was a son of one of the Miners and was remarkable for his intelligence and spightliness. He went off in the woods near by to gather berries, and since that hour nothing has been seen or heard of the little fellow. The whole country for miles in every directions is an untrodden forest, yet for nearly six weeks parties were out daily in the pursuit of him. It is possible he may have survived some days, and even weeks, upon berries but search has finally been abandoned. The heart broken parents are living upon hope that their fond child may yet be restored to them. It is feared he was taken off by some wild beast, but most probably he died of fright and starvation. [No name was given]

Executor's Notice – The estate of the late John MARCY, of Benton township, requests payments and claims. Punderson AVERY, Exc'r, Tunkhannock.

W. GOFF and P. W. REDFIELD, Secretaries. They had the following nominations:
For Assembly: Benjamin F. BAILY and William APPLE

To the Subscribers of the Luzerne Democrat – you are hereby notified that I stand no longer responsible for cause and conduct pursued by that paper, and all those who have become Subscribers on my account, if they see proper can discontinue by paying arrearages to William BOLTON who is hereby authorized to collect and receive the same. Wm. S. JAYNE

The connection between the subscriber and the Luzerne Democrat has expired. The arduous duties of the profession in which he is engaged, has prevented him from always giving that attention to its columns that the public had a right to expect and its interest and prosperity seemed to require – this, with other causes, among which might be mentioned certain views, conflicting with those of the publisher, and already before the public, has induced him to retire from its editorial department – and in doing so, he would tender to its patrons his grateful acknowledgements for the kind of generous indulgence with which they have ever regarded his feeble efforts to instruct and amuse them – and assure them of his warmest wishes for their future happiness and prosperity. Jno. V. SMITH

Our patrons are informed that the publication of the "Democrat," after the present number, will be suspended until the first of December. Various reasons might be assigned for this, and among others, we are nearly out of paper, out of cash, out at the elbows, and out of health and need recruiting. The time from this till December, we hope will be improved by our friends and those intrusteed, in increasing the subscription to the Democrat. This under the present circumstances deprived as we probally shall be of most of the public patronage will be found absolutely necessary. As yet, however, we can discover no cause for desponding --in fact, we long ago erased the odious words from our vocabulary. True, we have been beaten by the whigs and mongrels, but not fairly; what of that? only show us the "wisible means of support," and the game before us, and we are as ready as ever to follow it to the death.

Notice – Is hereby given, that there will be held a meeting of Juvenile Temperance Society of Tunkhannock, on Friday the 29th of October next at 4 o'clock P. M. General attendance is requested. By order of the board. Edward A. BUCK, Secretary. Pr. B. F. DURHAM.

Estray - Came into the enclosure of the Subscriber on or about the first of August last, two red steers, three or four years old, one had a bell on when it came – also one heifer about two years old also red. The owner is requested to come forward prove property, pay charges and take them away. Tho's MILLER, Eaton

The bill to remove the seat of justice of Columbia county from Danville to Bloomsburg, has been negatived by a large majority.

Disastrous Land Slide at Troy, occurred about half past three o'clock yesterday afternoon, even more fatal in its effects than the disaster of a similar character which afflicted that city in 1837. The slide reached upwards of two hundred yards into the level plain, covering a space of more than 150 yards wide, to an average depth of twenty feet. Masses of blue clay, rendered by the cold almost as hard as a rock were scattered over the whole extend. Fragments of shattered buildings were strewn along the surface or peeped out form the ruins. One of the houses overwhelmed by the avalanche had caught fire, and the smoke from the smouldering flames hung like a pall over the sad scene. The known dead are:

Mrs. Mathew GRENNIN and child
Mrs. William BREZELL and two children
Thomas KELLY and wife
Michael DUNN
Edward DUMBLETON – a lad
A child of James CADWELL
Two children of Daniel E. DAY

26 April 1843
Samuel CAREY - The last but one of the survivors of the Wyoming Massacre, died at his residence on the Plains, in Pittston township, on Sunday morning last. Mr. CAREY was nineteen at the time of the battle, and was in his eighty-fifth year at the time of his death. He belonged to Captain BIDLACK'S company, was on a scouting party up as far as Wyalusing, before the invasion; and was at Exeter, a day or two before the battle, siding in removing the remains of the HARDINGS, who had been murdered by the Indians. On the fatal 3rd, he was enabled, by his superior agility, while scores of his comrades were cut down around, to reach the river bank, and swim across. But the wily enemy before him; and as he landed, he fell into the hands of a party of Indians. They compelled him to swim back again, bound him and took him up to Fort Wintermoot. In the morning, he was led to a young savage who had been mortally wounded, and was dying, a sort of ceremony took place, the purpose of which was to learn from the young Indian whether he wished the young prisoner to be carried home to his parents in his place. The dying savage assented – young CAREY was named Coconennquo, and adopted into the tribe of Onondagos.
When the Indians departed, CAREY was taken with them. He remained in captivity six years, living with the Indians on the northern frontier, but at last managed to escape and returned to his much loved, though desolated home.. Mr. CAREY had been in feeble health for some time. The energies of his manhood gradually declined; one by one his senses had lost their quickness; and as a good old age hi lamp of life went out for want of oil.
The remains of the old soldier were interred at the grave yard in this place on Tuesday last. The Wyoming Artillerists escorted the body into town, and paid the last tribute of military honors; and a very large concourse of citizens were present.
